THE LEADER SPEAKS!

Hey, we're back! After a tense period of waiting and watching the sales figures from AMIGA FORCE 1, we've returned to provide you with another instalment. So many readers of the debut issue have written and phoned to ask when the next mag goes on sale, I thought I'd take this opportunity to put you all in the picture...

Issue One of AMIGA FORCE didn't have a 'next month' page setting a date for the publication of Issue Two, or include subscription details, for a very valid reason — we didn't know if there was going to be a second issue!

Many industry luminaries thought we'd gorn and lost our marbles completely when we announced the launch of a new Amiga magazine. With so many Amiga titles on the market already, they argued, such a late-comer wouldn't stand a chance. And when they discovered that we intended to go on sale with no cover disks, reservations were made at the Sunny Daze Sanatorium!

But, arrogant gits that we are, we were confident that we knew better. By cutting out all the technical cobblers which most rival mags carry in a cynical attempt to attract hardware advertisers, by ensuring a laughably low price due to our refusal to carry useless cover disks, and by committing ourselves to providing the very best Amiga games information in the shape of easy-to-use tips and ruthlessly honest reviews (of finished games ONLY), we were convinced that we'd win over a sizeable slice of the mag-buying public. And guess what? WE WERE RIGHT!

As a result, you'll be happy to know, from next issue on we're going to go monthly. Issue Three hits the streets on Feb 18, and from then on in we'll be exploding onto the news stands at regular monthly intervals. So thanks, Amigaphiles, for without you none of this would have been possible...

May The Force Be With You,

Steve Shields

SMASHIN', GREAT, SUPERVISION!

Quickshot, the renowned joystick manufacturing supremos, have announced the launch of a new hand-held games machine. Retailing at a mere £39.99, the Supervision is revolutionary in the way the mono screen can be 'tilted' for a better viewing angle.

Of course, there's the obligatory free game supplied in the package (as well as earphones and four batteries). But those who think the Supervision will prove to be a one-game wonder, think again. With 50 carts available for the Christmas market and more currently in development, it looks to be a serious contender to the Nintendo Gameboy.

The games we've seen seem quite promising, the most noteworthy being Tennis Pro '92. At a glance, there doesn't actually look much to the 3-D action, but after extensive playtesting we found it very compulsive.

Possibly the best news is the price of the games. Quickshot have assured us they'll be retailing between £9.99 and £12.99 — a far cry from the average £19.99 on the Gameboy.

Question: How do you make your Amiga more like a console?

Answer: Insist on paying twice as much for your software then complete your new games in one sitting!

Alternatively, you could always invest in the new Turbo Touch 360 from Hornby Hobbies, an Amiga-compatible joy-pad similar those supplied with Sega's Megadrive. The big difference between the two controllers is that Hornby's model is touch-sensitive, as opposed to having positive-response buttons.

Tricky to get to grips with for hardened joystick jugglers, but possibly invaluable for 'up-graders', further details are available on the Hornby Hobbies Hot Line: 0843 231 088. Calls are charged at the regular, domestic rate; and not at hugely inflated 0898 rip-off prices!

TURBO TOUCH 360
Technology Break-through in Video Game Control

CAN'T TOUCH THIS!

A LITTLE CLARITY

Microdeal have just announced the launch of their new stereo 16-bit sampler, the Clarity 16. There are much cheaper devices around, but for £149.95 you get a state-of-the-art sound package, including a built-in MIDI interface and powerful software. The latter enables detailed editing of samples and the addition of a plethora of special effects, such as Flange, Chorus, Distortion and Stereo Pan. Most importantly, the 16-bit sample quality should rival that of infinitely more-expensive professional samplers. Look out for a review in a future issue of AMIGA FORCE.

THE SHOW MUST GO ON

The Live '93 consumer electronics show press information pack has just reached us, and from what we've seen about the venue and companies attending, it's going to be a biggie! It'll be taking place on 16-20 September 1993 at Olympia, London. As well as being sponsored by five major newspapers, it'll have Commodore and W-Industries (Virtual Reality people) stands, providing fun for all the family. There are also plans afoot to have a 'Games Village' — although arcade grapplers should be aware that loooooong waits are an inevitable factor at these shows.

MICE TO SEE YOU, TO SEE YOU...

Those chirpy little rodents at Logitech have just announced the release of the new, improved Pilot Mouse, which they consider to be 'the perfect mouse for the Amiga and Atari ST'. Steve (our tyrannical Managing Ed) suggested he took it home for some extensive testing. It's now a few weeks later and we've seen hide nor hair of it since. Steve commented that while the price tag is a little on the high side (£24), it certainly takes the cheese and biscuits in the usability stakes. Both comfortable and responsive is his verdict, we'll just have to take his word for it. Similarly, we can't comment on how well it works on the ST — but then, who cares?

DELUXE DELIGHTS

Electronic Arts have sent us copies of Deluxe Paint IV and Deluxe Video III. As A-FORCE is essentially a games-oriented magazine, we thought a review would be a little out of place, but they certainly deserve a mention as they're pretty damn excellent. With the two together, you could practically (memory willing) create your own film sequences. As well as improving on features in previous versions, both incorporate new options, making them far more powerful and easier to use... at least, after detailed perusal of the hefty instruction manuals!

KEEP OFF THE GRASS

For those of you disappointed by the absence of a Lawnmower Man computer game, Storm have just announced plans to develop The Lawnmower Man II, coinciding with the film's release during the fourth quarter of 1993. Sadly, there aren't any plans for an Amiga version as of yet, but CDTV owners are to be graced with actual footage from the film. What we want to know is why on earth can't there be a normal Amiga game? Hopefully this will be resolved soon enough, as it seems a trifle sad that such a prominent licence (with massive potential for conversion) should be underexploited this way. Watch this space for further news.

A LITTLE TOO DIZZY?

News has reached us that the eagerly awaited Crystal Kingdom Dizzy has been 'delayed indefinitely' due to unforeseen programming difficulties. However, we at AMIGA FORCE know what really happened: Dizzy's disappeared with Dora, hasn't he? Sick and tired of Daisy's constant nagging, our hero finished his role in the 8-bit versions and eloped, using the re-run royalties gained from Prince Of The Yolkfolk to pay his way. CodeMasters are doing their best to lure him back, but we've heard that Dora makes a mean casserole, so don't hold your breath (unless you want to turn blue, that is).

KRUSTY'S SUPER FUNHOUSE

House of fun

Unfortunately, it's not as simple as all that. The Funhouse is a bizarre piece of architecture, with uneven platforms being mostly impassable to little rodents. To make matters worse, there are bad guys, ranging from snakes to aliens — all trying to make things as tricky as they can for our hero. Assailants can be dispatched with collected pies and bouncing balls — but only while stocks last, folks; they're limited to amounts of 10 and 5 respectively.

Getting the rats into the machines is a tricky business. They're pretty dumb creatures and will walk back and forth between obstructing scenery forever and a day. However, Krusty can find objects (such as blocks and pipe pieces) that, if utilised correctly, get the rodents moving the right way. Once the rats reach a machine, they're either squashed, fried or inflated to death. Ho ho ho, indeed...

Graphically, Krusty's is excellent, with some well-animated and colourful sprites stomping around with comical style. All the atmosphere of its console counterparts has been retained, although (predictably) some of the sampled effects just had to go.

In short, Krusty's is one of the best platform games available at the moment, with the rat-eradicating elements injecting a little originality into the genre.

Like it? We love it!

TIP TIME! Ammo is severely limited so save it for when you really need it.

The atmosphere of its console counterparts has been retained

■ Acclaim, £25.99

Krusty The Clown is a troubled man. As well as being an ugly, fat, green-wigged social incompetent he's also got a rodent problem in his beloved Funhouse. Little purple rats have taken up residence in the zany building's many rooms. Despite earning millions from his pork products, Krusty's too stingy to pay for pest control and so decides to get rid of the rats himself.

On each of the levels, our clown is confronted by a series of doors. Behind these are areas swarming with vermin, all of which must be cleared. After choosing his room (or should that be his fate?), Krusty sets out to rid the building of the disease-ridden pests.

He's not alone in his quest though: friends of his, such as Bart and Homer Simpson, are waiting patiently at the controls of their advanced anti-rat machines. Sadly, these contraptions are a little too hefty to be moved around, so it's up to our clown to get the critters moving in the right direction.

■ These are the antics of a demented circus clown, outside he's laughing but inside he's really wearing a frown!

GET YOUR

Do you always get what you pay for? In the Amiga scene, the old adage doesn't always ring true. There are some real bargains to be found on budget — as we discovered while playing the entire range of £9.99 Kixx titles...

STRIDER

■ A good attempt at converting the ground-breaking Capcom coin-op. Some of the superbaddies are a bit crude, but the hero climbs and cartwheels his way around the large multidirectionally scrolling levels with style, swiping his sword at countless varied enemies. Three years after its original release, it can't compare with the slickness of today's arcade conversions, but fans of the coin-op will savour the unique graphic style and addictive action.

ACTION FIGHTER

■ A poor conversion of an obscure Sega coin-op, this is a mediocre Spyhunter variant: ie a vertically scrolling, destructive driver. The best bit is the neat vehicle transformation scene — from motorbike to car — but the repetitive action isn't helped by naff graphics.

CARRIER COMMAND

■ This was a real milestone in the history of software, created by Realtime (who more recently did the Gamesmaster TV title sequence). The solid 3-D in Carrier isn't quite so impressive nowadays, but complements the tense action: a combination of arcade action and deep strategy. Not only do you control a huge carrier, but also the three fighter planes and amphibious vehicles within, trying to conquer islands and then defend them against the computer carrier. A classic.

ST DRAGON

■ The horizontally scrolling blaster doesn't live up to the rave reviews it received on its original release, but it's not bad. You control a Chinese-style dragon (looks more like a snake to us!) with a tail that can be curled round to protect it from bullets fired by a plethora of nasties, including some neat end-of-level superbaddies.

WORLD CLASS LEADER BOARD

■ Legendary in its day, this classic golf sim has been outclassed by some recent releases, most notably the superlative PGA Tour Golf. Nevertheless, for the price of half a dozen balls, it provides plenty of fun — especially with a group of friends competing.

TUSKER

■ It's not one of System 3's best arcade adventures, but Tusker contains puzzles galore and plenty of combat — with bare fists, knife, machete, slingshot or gun. Slick scenery helps create a heady atmosphere as you explore Africa in search of the mythical elephant's graveyard.

STUNT CAR RACER

■ An absolute all-time classic, this revolutionary racer features rollercoaster-style tracks to really churn your stomach. It's gripping stuff as your futuristic stock car jumps miles into the air from ramps to clear massive chasms. A superb long-term challenge is provided by the four-division league and eight tracks.

Z-OUT

■ The sequel to X-Out omits that game's tiresome armament screen and kicks you straight into the horizontally scrolling blasting action. It's all very slickly done, but doesn't quite match the playability of that old favourite, R-Type.

R KIXX!

FEATURE

DRAGONS OF FLAME

■ Experienced roleplayers may find it a bit lightweight, but this Heroes Of The Lance-style hybrid of AD&D and arcade action is a fair introduction for novices. By switching between the eight characters in your group, you can use their special skills (eg magic) to the full, the current character being shown in the arcade window and controlled by joystick.

FLIMBO'S QUEST

■ They don't come any cuter than this, but don't be put off: Flimbo's is an incredibly playable platform romp. Some of the creatures populating each level leave behind a letter when shot:

collect all these to form the password to the next section. Variety is added by secret treasure rooms and weapons/potions bought from the shop.

RICK DANGEROUS

■ One of the funniest, and most compulsive, platform romps ever, this Indiana Jones spoof'll have you in stitches. It's packed full with unfriendly natives, hidden switches, secret passages and tons of traps — including the boulder that chases you at the very start!

SWIV

■ This spectacular vertically scrolling blaster is even more fun with two players: one controlling a helicopter, the other a jeep. The action is fast and furious, with no let-up between levels, as there aren't any — the game comprises one huge landscape, enabled by the continuous disk-accessing system (pioneered in Ninja Warriors). One of the best blasters around.

ITALY 1990

■ You'll be crying into your shirt if you buy this inferior footy game! The good news is that it incorporates an accurate World Cup tournament (with 24 accurate teams). The bad news is that the crude action isn't a patch on the likes of Sensible and Kick Off 2.

GHOULS 'N' GHOSTS

■ It's got its fair share of glitches, but this is still a good conversion of the Capcom coin-op. A high difficulty level could lead to frustration, but the superlative Tim Follin soundtrack is one of the best ever on the Amiga — it's worth buying just for that.

BARBARIAN II

■ Not to be confused with the more-recent Psygnosis game of the same name, this is actually more playable. It's an epic arcade adventure with plenty of gratuitous violence thrown in, as the muscular hero swipes his sword at some very impressive monsters.

ROADBLASTERS

■ It's a fair conversion of the old coin-op — which many people loathed, but some loved. If you're one of that latter strange breed, this accurate rendition will have you blasting down the freeway in ecstasy. Otherwise, steer clear!

TURRICAN

■ Only puny gamesplayers would complain of the levels being too big. They are massive, but then, exploration is just part of the fun in this epic arcade adventure. The hero's one of the best equipped ever, with a swirly lightning sword, gun, grenades, mines and energy lines. Which is just as well, as the superbaddies are truly super.

CRACKDOWN

■ A variation on the Gauntlet theme, this two-player maze extravaganza is extremely addictive. Great tension is created by the requirement to place time bombs and reach the exit within a tight time limit, not to mention the realistic shootouts with intelligent enemies.

BLASTEROIDS

■ This souped-up Asteroids retains all the playability of that classic, adding a great two-player mode and the long-term challenge of clearing different galaxy sectors. A host of power-ups add to the furious fun, as do different types of asteroid, including eggs which hatch into homing leeches.

L.E.D. STORM

■ The coin-op never really caught on, which is a mystery when you see this cracking conversion. It's the best destructive racer of all, despite the fact that your car is unarmed. Enemy vehicles are only destroyed by jumping on top of them, and this ability also comes in useful for clearing the huge gaps in the road.

X-OUT

■ Properly pronounced 'Crossout' (flippin' silly name anyway!), this horizontally scrolling shoot-'em-up features some slick presentation. However, although the detailed armament screen is indeed excellent, it takes too long to arm your ships, only to see them all destroyed within a couple of minutes' play.

Epic Amiga games for under £15, can it possibly be true? We take a look at the rapidly expanding Kixx XL range...

IMPOSSIBLE MISSION 2

■ Who could forget this classic arcade adventure? The graphics aren't exactly state of the art (especially compared to games nowadays) but the simple platform/exploration action grabs you immediately and won't let go.

1943

■ Only nostalgic fans of the old Capcom coin-op will get any enjoyment from this. The crude vertically scrolling action is of the 'blast everything that moves' type, as your WWII plane tackles the entire Japanese Pacific fleet! In both gameplay and graphics, 1943 looks extremely dated (ho ho!).

AXEL'S MAGIC HAMMER

■ As Mario-style platformers go, this one's not at all bad. Instead of headbutting blocks, Axel smashes 'em with his oversize mallet to reveal assorted collectable items. Of course, a game of this type wouldn't be complete without the obligatory secret rooms, bonuses and handy restart points. Don't knock it.

TURBO OUT RUN

■ By today's standards, the 3-D looks decidedlyropy. Looks aren't everything, though, and this is still a fair conversion of the arcade machine. As such, it's very playable as you race to reach race checkpoints within tight time limits, using your limited turbo power to best effect.

THUNDER BLADE

■ An awkward control system makes for frustrating play in this dubious conversion of the hydraulic coin-op. The 3-D looks neat, but weaving your chopper through tower blocks and flak is a frustrating affair. The vertically scrolling levels are more playable, though they look out of place.

MIDWINTER

■ £12.99

■ The earth has been plunged into another Ice Age following an immense impact by a huge meteor. 60 years later, the only human civilisation is on the island of Midwinter.

This is the setting for an incredibly involved strategy game with the added attraction of arcade subgames. And, for once, this strange combination works well.

You begin in the role of Captain John Stark, organising a campaign of resistance against the evil General Masters. Stark can't contact anyone by radio, so his first task is to ski to nearby comrades. This is done in a brilliant 3-D subgame (the graphics are impressive even nowadays) — others include hang-gliding, sniping and driving a snow buggy.

On meeting people, Stark can try and recruit them — if successful, they too come under your control. What makes this even more intriguing is the realism of the characters. Not only do they have strengths and weaknesses, but also human feelings for each other including jealousy, hatred and even love! These factors determine what chance one person has of recruiting another.

Meanwhile, the tactical aspect involves typical guerilla warfare:

ambushing enemy supplies and capturing villages. Strategic planning takes place on a neat map screen, which can be viewed in contour or relief mode, and zoomed into to reveal positions of buildings and forces.

It's all a bit daunting at first, but user-friendly icon-driven menus help you along, and the 3-D action sequences are great fun. The solitary flaw is that experienced gamers might find it too easy to complete. While this was a major drawback at the original £30 price tag, it's not so off-putting now. You won't play a more atmospheric game than this.

FORGOTTEN WORLDS

■ Slightly overrated by some on its original release, this is a fair rendition of the Capcom coin-op. The two heroes fly around the horizontally scrolling screen, rotating their guns to aim at the lightning-fast enemies. It ain't brilliant, but not at all forgettable.

INDIANA JONES AND THE LAST CRUSADE — THE ACTION GAME

■ Not to be confused with the superior adventure, this is a mediocre arcade romp. Indy cracks his whip, fires his pistol and jumps around platforms in four levels, but the action never really hots up and the graphics aren't anything to note down in your diary.

OUT RUN

■ The coin-op classic looks decidedly dated compared to today's sophisticated driving games. And this isn't even a good conversion of it, completely lacking the graphical slickness and style — so there's no pose value whatsoever.

THE LINEKER COLLECTION

■ £19.99

■ While Gary's career takes him east, this four-game compilation sadly goes west. Well, it's not quite that bad, but it was a good gag!

International Soccer Challenge

This ambitious attempt at first-person-perspective footy is dragged down in the mud by the slowness of the graphics. As with other 3-D soccer sims, the inability to see players behind you causes problems.

Gary Lineker's Hot-Shot!

Yet another average overhead footy game that can't compare with the speed and skilful play of Sensible Soccer, despite the inclusion of fouls and bookings.

Footballer Of The Year 2

The joker in the pack, this is a hybrid of a trivia quiz and simple arcade sequences. As such, it's fun for a few plays, but the repetitive action eventually has you heading for the changing rooms.

Italy 1990

An accurate implementation of the World Cup finals is let down by mediocre action. Dribbling is easy with the ball stuck to your foot, and in two-player mode you can zig-zag to keep switching control between your opponent's defenders — very irritating!

INDIANA JONES AND THE LAST CRUSADE

■ £14.99

■ Far superior to its arcade counterpart, this Lucasfilm graphic adventure provides great long-term appeal. Right from the humorous intro (a dripping-wet Indy marching into Barnett College), you know you're in for a real treat.

Further exploration of the college entails a boxing match (arcade sequence) and a class full of rowdy students. Unsurprisingly, Indy soon gets the urge for adventure on discovering his father's disappeared on an expedition to find the Holy Grail.

You move Indy around by pointing and clicking with the mouse, using the keywords at the bottom of the screen to perform more complicated actions. This system enables smooth play without vocabulary problems.

As fans of the film know, Indy's travels take him to Venice, a Nazi-filled castle (requiring some arcade combat) and the Middle East. He even gets to fly, taking the controls of a plane in a neat, first-person-perspective subgame.

Having seen the movie will help you, but it's still an epic challenge with plenty of logical puzzles to solve. Despite average graphics and sound (revealing the game's PC origins), it's an essential purchase for adventurers.

CONQUEROR

■ A playable tank game, using the same 3-D graphics system as Virus. It's a mixture of simple Battle Zone-style combat and strategic planning — with the added attraction that you can play either of these modes without the other.

FUTURE WARS

■ £12.99

■ This graphic adventure starts with you in a window-cleaning basket, halfway up a skyscraper. From this unlikely location, climbing through an open window plunges you into a weird mission to save Earth from time-travelling aliens!

This French-originated game was the first to use the Cinématique system, where you point and click on the screen to find and use objects.

You'll need more than puzzle-solving skills, though. The eyes of a hawk are necessary to spot some objects on screen, eg a tiny red dot turns out to be an essential map flag. And you'll need good mouse dexterity to complete some of the arcade sequences.

It's compulsive stuff, and the slick graphics and sound compare favourably with many newer releases. Future Wars offers a whole lot of adventuring fun for the money. Magnifique!

FEATURE

MOONWALKER

■ Wooh! Ow! Erm, no Michael, it isn't that exciting. However, as film conversions go, it makes the best of a Bad lot. The four levels range from crude maze games to cursor-aiming shootouts, but it's not what you'd call a Thriller. Oh well, it's still better than the movie!

BIONIC COMMANDO

■ Another fair conversion of a Capcom coin-op favourite, its main drawback is the startling omission of the two-player mode (hence the singular title). This apart, the graphics and sound are both workmanlike, but the feel and playability of the arcade machine is largely retained.

GO FOR GOLD

■ Previously known as The Games — Summer Edition this isn't a patch on earlier Epyx sports sims.

The eight events lack imagination and playability — and the two gymnastic ones (Rings and Uneven Bars) are overly complicated.

DRILLER

■ Freescape, eh? You either love it or hate it. As long as you're not in the latter camp, Driller's a good buy on budget. The gameplay isn't as sophisticated as on later Freescape games (this was the first), but there's plenty of exploring to do and perplexing puzzles to solve.

CALIFORNIA GAMES

■ A fairly accurate, if technically unastounding conversion of the old favourite, this features all six events: BMX, Surfing, Roller Skating, Flying Disk, Footbag, and Halfpipe Skateboarding. These are all as playable as on other computer formats, but some seem trickier — especially the Surfing (even beach-bum Steve couldn't do an aerial turn).

SUPER SCRAMBLE SIMULATOR

■ We always thought this former full-pricer would be ideal on budget — and here it is! It's basically a variation on that old favourite, Kik Start. As such, there isn't much scope for technical wizardry, but carefully manoeuvring your bike over logs, barrels and Volkswagen Beetles is enjoyable, if at times frustrating.

SWITCHBLADE

■ This odd arcade adventure is marred by simplistic combat: you can continually punch and kick enemies from a higher platform without risk. It all gets a bit repetitive, but exploring the huge underground levels is enjoyable for mapping fans.

HEROES OF THE LANCE

■ As with the later Dragons Of Flame, this combination of arcade action and roleplaying falls between two stools. Nevertheless, as with the follow-up, it's a fair introduction to the RPG genre at the budget price.

BARBARIAN

■ This is most famous for its controversial ads, featuring Maria Whittaker wearing a couple of saucers. Which is a shame really, as the game has more than a couple of good points. One of the goriest hack-'em-ups of all time, the highlight is the bloody decapitation scene — especially when the dwarf plays footy with the head!

PANZA KICK BOXING

■ Another fairly playable one-on-one beat-'em-up, this is a unique simulation of the obscure sport. A good long-term challenge is provided by the ability to improve your boxer's skills in the training section, and there's a fun two-player mode to boot.

VIGILANTE

■ A good conversion of the average coin-op, this features beat-'em-up action at its most repetitive. Virtually continuous attacks from left and right means progress through the horizontally scrolling levels is slow. There's some nice end-of-level baddies, though.

STREET FIGHTER

■ This one-on-one beat-'em-up takes you around the world, duffing people up in each exotic location. The simple karate action all looks a bit old hat now, and is bound to be blown away by the imminent Street Fighter II. Nevertheless, it's a fair old challenge, and you even get a free lapel badge!

KIXX THE WINNER TAKES IT ALL!

THE ENTIRE KIXX RANGE IS UP FOR GRABS!

As you've witnessed in our roundup, there are indeed some superb bargains on the Kixx budget label. And you can win the lot (including those superb XL titles) — a total of 46 games! — in this kickin' comp.

Just think of all the fun you'll have beating people up, shooting aliens, driving super-cars and much more. Not to mention burning the midnight oil over those entrancing Kixx XL epic adventures.

In addition, ten lucky runners-up will win the Kixx game of their choice. All you have to do to stand a chance is unscramble these three Kixx titles:

- 1. BITS ARE SOLD
- 2. TEETER FRIGHTS
- 3. HES A LECHER OF NOTE

Got 'em all? Jot the answers down on a postcard (with your name, address and choice of game) and send it to: KRAZY KIXX KOMP, AMIGA FORCE, Europress Impact, Ludlow, Shropshire SY8 1JW, to arrive no later than 28 February 1993.

There are a number of natty new releases waiting in the wings this month, games which have somehow failed to materialise in their full and finished form. Enough in the way of pre-production demo disks have found their way to the A-Team's floppy drives, however, but since we're only in the business of reviewing shop-ready software we'll round 'em up here in the previews section...

LEMMINGS 2 - TRIBES

■ Psygnosis, £25.99

The original Lemmings game (along with the consequent Oh No, Not More Lemmings! extra-levels disk) was praised from the rooftops by the computer press and consumers alike — quite an astounding achievement, considering it was (a) an original game concept, and (b) not a tie-in.

At last, the eagerly awaited sequel is nearing completion and, from what we've seen from our demo version, it looks to be even greater than the original. The lemmings are now capable of more involved actions, such as filling in holes in the landscape, building walls, skiing — our suicidal little friends have even nipped off for archery lessons (true!).

Their movements have to be seen to be believed — take a look at the screenshots and you might get some idea of just how involved it all is. Graphically improved over its predecessor, and with far more varied gameplay, Lemmings 2 could well be the big Xmas/New Year hit.

WALKER

■ Psygnosis, £25.99

Everyone (at some point) must have stopped while playing their favourite shoot-'em-up and thought how nice it would be to take the controls of an end-of-level bad guy. Walker, to a certain extent, can fulfil this dream.

In this unusual right-to-left scroller, you take the role of a massive two-legged mechanical Walker, blasting everything that moves. This is great fun but what really makes it special is the novel control method. You move the Walker right/left using the joystick, while moving his guns with the mouse. One click of the mouse button and... kapow! Another soldier bites the dust.

The graphics are fantastic, with the Walker animated to perfection. Little tiny soldiers dangle from helicopters and attack in groups along the ground, as well as making skirmishes on motorcycles. When shot, they explode in a spray of blood.

Ardent pacifists may not like this, but it's party time for sadistic worms like us. Pencilled in for imminent release, check the next issue of AMIGA FORCE for the full review. Thought for the day: if the Walker is comparable to the usual end-of-level bad guy, imagine what might be in store at the end of each section!

■ If you see me gunning down the street and I start to die, each time we meet, just walk on by! Wicked concept — great FX!

■ Ready, aim and... fire! A Lemming is blasted into the middle of next week via a handy cannon (left & inset), while another of the suicidal saps prepares for a flying leap on skis (above).

PREVIEWS

BILL'S TOMATO GAME

■ Psygnosis, £25.99

Arcade puzzle games have become ever more plentiful since the release of Lemmings. Bill's Tomato Game is another (albeit different) save-'em-up that we can't really compare to anything we've seen before.

The idea is to get your tomato onto the other side of the static, trap-filled screen. To do this, you need to utilise the tools given to you at the start of each level. For example, a fan placed behind our hero blows him forwards a certain distance, while a trampoline bounces him a little further (not to mention higher). Fall onto something nasty (or an unprepared platform) and you're ketchup, mate.

The demo version we have is certainly tricky (plenty of scope for tips here) and the inclusion of a password system means an end to repetitive slogging through levels previously completed. Hopefully, we should have a reviewable copy for Issue 3, so for the definitive lowdown (and maybe some playing advice), look out for the next instalment...

■ Okay, so the consoles got there first... but can the Amiga do it better? With only the one joystick button to play with on our beloved machine — the arcade version utilised SIX! — it's hard to imagine how SF2 will manage to retain its playability.

LETHAL WEAPON

■ Ocean, £25.99

An amalgamation of all three films, and from what we've seen of the Amiga version so far it looks a stonker. Essentially a platform game, Lethal Weapon is similar to Hudson Hawk (in some respects), but with a little more action-packed gameplay and, of course, better graphics.

If you're looking for an original game, try elsewhere. Lethal Weapon follows the usual tried-and-tested formula for film licences but is much slicker than most. Neat touches like wonderfully animated water, with little balaclava-clad hitmen leaping out and shooting you, make an action game something special — Lethal Weapon has this and more. See if it shoots from the hip when we review the finished and final version next ish.

■ Box office biggies they may well have been, but how Lethal Weapon will do in the software charts is anyone's guess. Looks good, though!

STREET FIGHTER II

■ US Gold £25.99

The Super Nintendo version of the popular arcade machine has been hyped beyond all belief recently. The N-FORCE (our sister mag) bunch have done their little bit to contribute as well. Not satisfied with just playing the thing, they've been stomping into our offices and crowing about how good it is, and how the Amiga could never cope with all the sprites (not to mention the speed).

Well, hopefully US Gold are set to prove them wrong, because being the industrious little beavers that they are, they've obtained the licence to produce home computer versions. Just imagine it: all those opponents to defeat, stamp on and generally mutilate — a sadist's dream. Now where's that blender...

If you haven't yet seen the coin-op or SNES version (where have you been?), the game features one-on-one combat against various opponents as you travel the world. It's most noted for the unique sprites and toughness of the fighters, each of which has three special moves, eg the Sumo wrestler does a rib-crushing bear hug!

Hopefully the Amiga version will live up to the ultracompetitive reputation of its coin-op counterpart — one player allegedly set fire to his opponent after losing a game!

ARABIAN NIGHTS

■ Krisalis, £25.99

Arabian Nights is yet another game in the popular platform mould, but from what we've seen so far it looks to be a particularly good example of the genre. Taking the part of Sinbad Jr (a little guy with a sword and a red hat) your objective is to escape from the Caliph's castle, fight through varied terrains and rescue the Caliph's daughter. This may seem like unusual behaviour for an ex-captive but the plot makes it very clear that our hero had been wrongly imprisoned. Rescuing the woman seems to be Jr's way of clearing his name (why couldn't he just rob a bank and move to Spain?).

Our preview version looks wonderful, with Jr running like someone after eating several packets of figs and jumping like a kangaroo with a pin in its bum. The backdrops are colourful, varied, and most of them are interactive. For example, hitting the trees — even though they're static scenery — makes little leaves float to the ground.

That's not all. Puzzles are solved using clues given (in a light bulb above Jr's head) when certain objects/scenery come into the hero's view. This doesn't appear to detract from the game (it could possibly have made puzzles a little too easy) — it merely acts as a well-presented extra in what could be the best Amiga platform game yet.

■ Remember children, don't barf behind bushes or this could be YOU!

■ Arabian Nights from Krisalis — either so cute you'll puke... or so smart you'll, er, buy it? Find out next ish!

CREATURES

■ Thalamus, £25.99

The original Creatures created a storm when released on the C64 many moons ago, and quite a few people couldn't figure out why it never made its way onto the Amiga. Well, we couldn't believe our eyes when a demo arrived in the Force offices. Gingerly, we slapped it into our disk drive and played through the first two levels, with the accompanying Torture Screen...

For those of you unfamiliar with the plot, Creatures is the story of a race of cute little fluffies living on the planet Blot. Sadly, they had to leave their planet to escape a terrible fate — being called by a name as unhip as The Blotians. They constructed a huge colony craft that took them as far as a big blue thing called the Pacific Ocean, where they crashed. Luckily, there were (previously undiscovered) islands nearby that the fluffies claimed and called 'The Hippest Place in the Known Universe', renaming themselves Fuzzy Wuzzies, in search of ultimate hipness.

However, the bad-tempered demons that lived on the other side of the islands didn't like all the noise the Fuzzies made and came up with a fiendish play. They arranged the biggest celebration ever known on the island, and invited all the Fuzzies to come along.

Of course, a Fuzzy Wuzzy can't resist a party, and after getting drunk, then subsequently captured, all our cute little friends were dragged off into the evil demons' torture chambers.

You take the part of Clyde Radcliffe, a Fuzzy missed by the demons because he was being sick in the bushes. Using everything at his disposal, he has to get through the horizontally-scrolling levels to locate and rescue his fluffy pals.

One thing that alarmed us was that the sprites have been changed — and they don't look half as good! We hope this can be sorted in the finished version as the original was one of the best 8-bit games ever.

BUDGET REVIEWS

BUDGET BARGAINS PRINCE OF PERSIA

■ The Hit Squad, £7.99

If you utilise the Amiga's enormous capability for graphical excellence, then inject a touch of exploration, pausing only to slap in a slight beat-'em-up theme, you'd probably (after a few hours in the oven) get Prince Of Persia.

On its initial release at full price it received rave reviews, all of which spoke about the wonderful animation — specifically that of the hero. Running over platforms, jumping perilous chasms and duelling with guards is executed with a fluidity previously unseen in a computer game. In a screenshot it looks very poor, as the background scenery is a little on the shoddy side, but when you see the hero move...

As a feat of graphical excellence, Prince Of Persia is super, smashing, lovely. As a game, however, it has some nail-biting inadequacies. While jumping and climbing over the scenery is fun for the first few attempts, you soon realise there's little else to do. There are no intricate puzzles, and precious little in the way of object manipulation.

As a budget game it's a worthy purchase, if just for the sprite movement, but those hoping for more than simple platform action will be disappointed. This Prince isn't quite as charming as it looks.

TIP TIME! If you get stuck, try this simple cheat mode. Press Caps Lock and tap L to skip levels.

■ Ouch! Falling onto spikes is a fatal experience, so be careful when jumping over gaps. However, obstructing spikes can be tip-toed through.

“Those hoping for more than simple platform action will be disappointed”

ALIEN BREED — 1992 V

■ Mysteriously similar to a Spectrum game? Maybe, but the maze genre looks to have reached a dead end — just like the hero (above).

■ Team 17, £10.99

Once upon a time, there was a computer called the Spectrum. Many people bought the aforementioned article and, although it couldn't offer them much in the way of power, it still gave a fair amount of enjoyment. One game among the extensive software base was a maze-exploration affair called Into the Eagle's Nest, released by a little-known software house called Pandora.

You may be wondering where all this is leading (you're right — Ed), but I'd just like to say that the similarities between Eagle's Nest and Alien Breed are astounding. Take away the futuristic scenario and the bare bones are the same — so much for original software, eh?

Breed '92 attempts to capture the atmosphere of suspense films, such as the three Alien productions. To a certain extent it succeeds, as the action gets pretty frenetic at times. But maze games are (to put it plainly) BORING. The addition of progressively more powerful weapons is a good idea, but when your assailants are as uninteresting as they are here, you end up wondering why they bothered.

Another (more interesting) feature is the ability to 'log on' to the computer consoles around the area. Once on line, maps of the level can be studied, along with a fair amount of reading material — not an essential aspect, but a nice touch all the same.

You may wonder why this is called the

“It's about good genre c

■ Don't look down! Daring leaps require good timing, but if you're just short of the platform you can always cling on with your hands.

■ Watch out for falling platform sections (above).

■ You need to find the sword to fight the guards (below).

VERSION

'1992 Edition'. Well, the simple truth is the game has already been released once, but Team 17 decided to re-issue it on budget, after making a few minor tweaks and adding a few more levels. It's about as good as the genre can get — but then maybe it's time it was finally laid to rest!

If it's suspense you want, KGB (reviewed this issue) can provide all this and more. If you want action (and let's face it, who doesn't?), something like Assassin (ironically by Team 17) should be a more satisfying purchase.

TIP TIME! Although it looks impressive, shooting down doors wastes ammo — it's better to use key cards.

SANTA'S CHRISTMAS CAPERS

■ Zeppelin, £7.99

Santa was on his usual Christmas morning rounds, delivering presents to the people of the world when one of his reindeer stumbled, resulting in scattered gifts all over the surrounding countryside. Mr Claus was (understandably) dismayed, as those packages were supposed to be hanging in stockings the very next day. So, rather than sloping off down the pub and drowning his sorrows (like any normal person), Santa gathered his wits, and set out to collect the presents so as to not leave people goody-less on Christmas Day.

As you can imagine, Christmas Capers is a basic platform game with a distinct lack of any spiky and blue influences (for a change). Santa must bounce through the many scrolling levels, collecting the small packages littered around the map, before making his way to the far right, where he can gain access to the following area.

On the way, he's hindered by many Christmassy enemies that reduce his meagre life counter on contact. Claus is hardly defenceless, though — he's got an infinite supply of snowballs to chuck at opponents, stunning them temporarily.

The problem with Capers is that compared to the recent rash of quality platform games, it isn't that good. The gameplay is very basic, with little of the shine seen in products such as Doodlebug (reviewed last issue), or the speed of something like Tearaway Thomas. Essentially, we're talking 8-bit action here.

So why is it so addictive? When we first loaded it, the entire office resounded with a cry of 'what a load of rubbish!'. But, after a little more playtesting, it proved to be a fair bash — for the price.

TIP TIME! It's better to go about the levels methodically, rather than charging through trying to reach the exit.

“ Compared to the recent rash of quality platform games, it isn't that good ”

■ It's a tough job being Santa, despite perks like mince pies and sherry. Every year he gets the sack, so he's unemployed for the next 364 days!

■ Exploring the labyrinthine levels is a tense affair, but the simple blasting action gets a bit tedious. And that main sprite really is awful.

BARGAINS

■ Anyone for tennis? Up to four players can join in the fun. You can even have mixed doubles for the perfect love match!

INTERNATIONAL
TENNIS■ Zeppelin, £7.99

International Tennis is a perfect example of how (when a little care and attention is applied) a tennis sim can really work well.

When so many have tried (and failed) to get a neat compromise between realism and solid arcade action, it seems strange that a budget game should be the one to produce the goods.

Of course, it includes many of the options now taken for granted, such as a two-player mode and multiple skill levels, but what really makes it special is the inclusion of doubles matches. Four players can get down, get groovy and get swinging — or let the computer control your partners. And if you wish to have a female representative on the court, so be it.

■ Different strokes

Three choices of surface are available, each of which affects the ball in a different way, eg

“What really makes it special is the inclusion of doubles matches” clay courts are notorious for absorbing bounces. As well as this, ‘spins’ and ‘smashes’ are catered for in a manner that doesn’t inhibit the action, but gives the player a little more to do other than press the joystick button.

The thing that makes a mockery of all this is the lack of a tournament option — why on earth not? Playing anonymous computer opponents does little to add atmosphere, and could eventually result in mindless tedium. No amount of sampled umpire speech or well-thought-out control methods can cure that affliction, and although this is the only fault we could find, we were rather alarmed at the size of it.

TIP TIME! Mix your shots to confuse your opponent: slow the play down with a few softer sliced shots, then surprise the other guy with a hard drive to the baseline.

HUDSON
HAWK■ The Hit Squad, £7.99

Hudson Hawk wasn’t exactly a classic movie, receiving hardened criticism from the press and public alike.

However, Special FX (the immensely talented programmers) managed to make a silk purse out of a sow’s ear and came up with this engrossing platform game.

Hawk is an agile and well-animated sprite, leaping about the scrolling landscapes with the greatest of ease. Each level comprises several sub-sections, most of which have their own graphical style. And what style it is — rarely have we seen a platform game with this much polish. Possibly the most astounding aspect is that the design is almost identical to its 8-bit counterparts. Usually this would be a terrible disappointment. However, this time the game is just so well thought out, we can’t help but play the little gem to death.

■ Comic capers

Another great little touch is the sense of humour. At one point during the first level, Hudson is seen infiltrating Rutherford’s Auction House. As well as security guards and rabid

Rottweilers, our hero is confronted by babies on bicycles and little kids with camcorders. If the would-be photographer is left for too long on the screen, he takes a photo. Seeing this, Hawk’s hair stands on end and his face is captured in a comical, eye-bulging scream. The picture is then displayed on the screen for all to see — a good incentive to punch the little so-and-so into next week pretty rapidly, we’d say.

It’s a tricky business though, this thieving. Security alarms are positioned all over the levels, and should Hawk trigger one of these,

■ We’d like to say ‘You’ve seen the film — now play the game’... but since it bombed at the flicks we can’t!

“Offering a lasting challenge to all platform fans” bells sound and he’s snowed under a deluge of security guards. At this point, it’s a wise move to find a quiet spot to hide until things calm down...

Hudson Hawk hasn’t aged at all since its original release. As a budget game, it’s an essential purchase, offering a lasting challenge to all platform fans. One point on the down side is that younger gamers may find it a trifle difficult, but all in all it’s a great game that does the Amiga proud.

TIP TIME! Don’t watch the film! But seriously, avoid the alarms at all costs unless you want to get caught.

GEM'X

BUDGET REVIEWS

■ Everyone knows that diamonds are a girl's best friend — especially when they're all she's wearing!

■ Global Software, £7.99

Puzzle games. Either you love 'em or hate 'em but, no matter what, you can't avoid them. Just when you think that finally there are no more, some so-and-so programmer comes up with another.

Gem'X is (as you've now ascertained) a puzzle game, originally released about 18 months ago. If we had to categorise it, it could only be described as a match-'em-up, but don't think for a moment you're being subjected to another second-rate Tetris clone.

The screen's divided into two halves: each with a slightly different arrangement of gems. The idea is to make the pattern on the left side match with the right. This is achieved by clicking your pointer on the differently coloured gems to 'decrease' them twice in colour. The added complication is that the surrounding four gems also go down one colour. When the two patterns are identical, you're sent to the next level.

The presentation's great, with lots of piccies showing young ladies (scantly dressed, of course) beckoning you onto the next level. The sound too, is of a very high standard. Other touches, such as level codes and the ability to undo moves, build on already strong foundations. However, this is a game with limited appeal. Not everybody likes puzzle games (as was pointed out earlier) because they offer little variation, and Gem'X is no exception. It's only a gem for ardent puzzle fans.

TIP TIME! Study each level carefully before making your first move — get it wrong and you've no chance.

TRIVIAL PURSUIT

■ The Hit Squad, £7.99

Trivial Pursuit became something of a craze as a board game, with thousands of cleverly researched questions taxing the minds of many. However, it had its drawbacks (doesn't everything?), the most noticeable being the price. The rereleased computer version'll save you a pile of dosh, but is it any better than its board-based brother?

Well, the answer is yes and no. Despite the inclusion of nice graphical touches and musical questions you can actually hear, Trivial's the sort of game you play around a table — not a computer desk. Secondly, the Amiga version's almost identical to its 8-bit counterparts. This isn't exactly an earth-shattering problem, but you'd have thought with all the extra memory, something more could have been incorporated (those 'musical' questions, for instance, could be reproduced exactly on a Speccy).

Colour-blind coders?

The main screen is a fairly accurate representation of the original board, with only one slight difference: the colours are in the wrong order! Everyone knows that pink is Entertainment and brown is Art & Literature — everyone except the programmers, that is. Once the mouse button has been clicked, the 'dice' are automatically rolled and all possible movements around the board indicated. When you've chosen the square (and its particular question category) the game flicks onto one of a series of screens, presented by a little fat bloke called TP (which you can turn off), who then asks you one of the many questions.

Rather than typing the answer in, you have shout it out loud — a further press of the mouse button reveals the answer, and you're asked if you got it right or not. This offers great scope for cheating, but in the long run it's like fiddling the cards at Patience — a very sad practice indeed.

Landing on one of the six larger squares results in a special question being asked. Get it right (or just click on the 'Yes' box regardless!) and you're awarded a 'wedge'.

Collect all six wedges, return to the centre and answer a question (the category chosen by your opponents), and you've won the game.

Trivial Pursuit's a fun affair, even when its faults are taken into consideration. It's not something to keep you hooked on your own (there are no computer opponents), but get some friends round and you can gloat about how much money you've saved over the board game.

TIP TIME! Answer 'yes' after every question to win the game! It's best to stay on the outside of the board, as there are no grey, 're-roll dice' squares in the middle.

DIZZY

PRINCE OF THE YOLKFOLK

■ CodeMasters,
£7.99

Originally part of the Dizzy's Excellent Adventures compilation, CodeMasters have now released Yolkfolk as an independent product.

The one thing that separates the Amiga Dizzy games from their 8-bit counterparts is the presentation. Little graphical touches are implemented with style, and the title 'Cartoon Adventure' isn't wildly inaccurate (hands up who saw the phrase on the back of the Speccy packaging? Bet you didn't laugh as much as we did!).

Prince Of The Yolkfolk is an arcade adventure where the (rather awful) plot sends you on a mission to save Daisy, while thwarting the plans of Rockwart, the evil troll. Essentially, the screen design and puzzles are the same as those found on the 8-bits, although certain platforms have been rearranged to make the layout more pleasing (and certainly clearer) to the eye, as well as the mind.

None of the puzzles are particularly obscure (a criticism levelled at earlier Dizzy games), but what alarms us is the acute lack of them. When compared to, for example, Magickland Dizzy, Yolkfolk is a mere demo comprising 20-odd puzzles and 40 or so screens. For a game supplied as an exclusive extra on a compilation Yolkfolk was a jolly little romp. However, as a stand-alone product its lack of depth is all too apparent, with the multi-format design a throwback to the days when Amiga games were merely Spectrum or a stand-alone product its lack of depth is all too

Commodore conversions with improved presentation.

■ Go on Dizzy, ya fat little fart, grab that pickaxe and wrap it round his head! No? Oh well, please yourself.

Negativity aside, this is a good game while it lasts, especially if you're an ardent Dizzy fan. We guarantee you won't be too disappointed (at least, not for the first week).

P.P. HAMMER AND HIS PNEUMATIC WEAPON

a pneumatic drill. Call us ignorant if you like, but it's not an everyday sort of superhero that brandishes a noisy roadworking tool, is it?

PP's pretty reminiscent of the Rick Dangerous games, but without the infuriating deaths.

Running around the scrolling areas, you soon come across weaker platform pieces that are easily disposed off with the trusty drill. However, after a certain amount of time, they reappear, and should PP be in the wrong place at that moment...

Hammer is a platform/puzzle game, with the hero collecting all the hidden treasure before finding the exit to the next level. As you'd expect, he's up against a tight time limit, so he has to move like a frisky fox to get through those screens. To help him, there are power-ups scattered around, ranging from oil (to speed up his drill) to potions, giving him extra physical abilities.

A little treasure

Graphically, Hammer's good to look at. All of

■ Global Software,

We've seen gun-toting heroes, sword-wielding barbarians and pyjama-clad ninjas, but never did we consider the beauty of a fat little man with

“The action gets a tad repetitive after a while”

PP's little actions are well animated, with the accompanying sound effects giving additional atmosphere. It makes for great budget action, because it's cheerful and fun for the time that it lasts. Its downfall is that the action gets a tad repetitive after a while — running around searching for treasure may be fun, but if it's on a computer, you don't get to keep it!

However, touches like the level codes make Hammer a nice bit of action to keep you playing through the small hours. Recent platform releases such as Krusty's Super Funhouse and Hudson Hawk (on budget) are better value for money, offering a great deal more long-term interest. But if you can afford both of these and still want more action, you can't go far wrong with PP.

TIP TIME! Use power-ups sparingly — you may come to a point when you really need them.

TEN TOP TACTICAL TREATS TO TAKE!

WIN THE WAR!

The days of tedious strategy sims are long gone. Nowadays they're real thrillers, with graphics and sound to match the best arcade games. So it's no longer just anoraks carefully planning their tactics — everyone wants to be an ace military commander!

Two of the best new strategic offerings are Sabre Team and Shadowlands, both from Krisalis, which has rapidly metamorphosed into one of the very top software houses.

Both games are slickly presented with superb graphics, user-friendly controls, and an epic challenge. And we've got five of each to give away to lucky readers! To stand a chance of triumphing, just think carefully about this tactical teaser:

The legendary A-FORCE has armed up with plenty of magazines for a daring raid on the local newsagent, who whines: 'There just aren't enough supplies to go round!' After entering the premises via a handy door (with an 'Open' sign on it), the expertly trained FORCE team is faced with a dilemma. Should they:

- (a) Buy a tabloid 'newspaper' and laugh at its pathetically inadequate computer-games column?
- (b) Be bored rigid, reading the techno-babble about the latest 24-bit scanner — a snip at £14,000?
- or (c) Fill the shelves with the only magazine for dedicated Amiga gamers?

The choice is yours, commander. Write your instruction on a postcard and send it (by express carrier pigeon) to GENERAL SHIELDS, AMIGA FORCE, Europress Impact, Ludlow, Shropshire SY8 1JW, to reach our front line no later than 18 February 1993.

RICH PICKINGS

■ Armed to the back teeth, skulking about in darkened corridors and wearing the most outlandish get up you've ever seen — crapes! Our Managing Director's on the prowl again!

Welcome to the most radical reviews section in Amigaland. Our policy on reviewing software is simple — if it's worth dishing out your dosh on we'll review it, but if it ain't worth whipping your wallet out for, we won't! This enables us to neatly evade the sticky situation of actually rating the games. The reviews speak for themselves and, at the end of the day, it's up to you to decide which game's better than which — there really is no accounting for taste!

SHADOWO

■ Krisalis, £25.99

Shadowlands is Krisalis's second strategic offering this month (the other's Sabre Team) — and if we had to choose between the two, this is the one AMIGA FORCE would go for.

Rather than using the present-day military scenario associated with Sabre Team, Shadowlands is set in the far future, on a gigantic orbital research station. Contact with the station has been lost, so a team of four individuals is needed to travel to the station — and ascertain what actually happened there (hmm, sounds vaguely familiar — Ed).

However, on arrival (and after choosing your team) it soon becomes brutally plain that something very strange has happened.

Once you get the hang of moving about (the control method is a little bewildering at first), encounters with other creatures become plentiful. But anybody with funny ideas about 'friendly' aliens after watching ET for too long is going to be terribly disappointed — these guys would eat little Elliott for breakfast!

Pick 'n' mix it

Possibly our favourite part of Shadowlands is the ability to 'mix' weapons, with a view to creating an offensive mega-weapon to suit your needs. Getting a decent gun is probably the first (and most important) task — those who think a Light Sabre will keep them alive are in for a BIG shock.

The graphics are fantastic: a revolutionary shading technique makes

ASSASSIN

■ Team 17, £25.99

Platform exploration games have been pretty thick on the ground recently, with the AMIGA FORCE office being snowed under a deluge of Sonic and Mario clones. How nice it would be, we thought, to see a more traditional doom and gloom, death and glory approach to things, as opposed to endless cuteness.

Well, it seems Team17 have had the same idea — their latest release is totally devoid of anything fluffy (unless you include the neck-gnawing guard-dogs) and it packs a mean punch in the gore department. The gameplay revolves around the hero's mission to end the reign of terror by Midan, villain extraordinaire and all-round bad guy. Along the way he comes into contact with Midan's thugs and security machines, all of which can be killed by the Assassin's boomerangs (his main offensive object) and the collectable 'special' weapons (essentially glorified smart-bombs). To start with, the boomerangs are pretty weak and ineffective, but can be souped up by collecting the numerous power-ups littered around the play area.

Get in the swing

What really makes Assassin enjoyable is the hero's ability to climb over, about and on the scenery. The freedom this gives is tremendous — swinging from tree to tree is not only satisfying, but safer than the real thing. Also, this gives you the option of running away and ambushing your opponent from above, below... wherever you feel most comfortable!

While we enjoyed playing the game, we felt the the hero's weapon was a bit wimpy. In our books, lone warriors take huge guns with lots of buttons into battle, not an old Australian hunting tool (the Aborigines use boomerangs to distract wildlife, making spearing easier). While this is by no means a major gripe, it seems to detract from the game in some peculiar way.

In addition, the control method is a little tricky to master. In fact the Assassin's very difficult to manoeuvre at times, leading to infuriation and all manner of teeth gnashing. Nevertheless, if you like a decent-paced, non-cutesy hanging-from-the-ceiling-'em-up, Assassin should be right down your alley.

The Assassin's very difficult to manoeuvre at times, leading to infuriation

TIP TIME! Sometimes discretion is the better part of valour — it's easier and quicker to avoid enemies by using the scenery to your advantage.

A revolutionary shading technique makes the lighting realistic lighting realistic. For example, if one of your characters should have their helmet lamp on in a darkened room, the area directly in front of them will be illuminated. However, the battery supply for the lamp is severely limited — many a panicked moment is spent in complete darkness, firing rounds of ammo at (seemingly) lethal shapes.

As real-time strategy/action games go, Shadowlands is one of the best available, offering scope for many a long night of enjoyment and pleasant frustration. Highly recommended.

TIP TIME! Send characters in to attack on their own, rather than in a group, to avoid non-controlled characters getting killed.

■ Assassin — is he the king of the swingers? Or will the blue-suited dude end up with his ass in a sling?

SENSIBLE SOCCER

■ Renegade, £25.99

Sensible Soccer has been heralded by many (not to mention the AMIGA FORCE crew) as the best football game ever. As well as being almost perfectly implemented, it provokes a more thoughtful type of play, although this doesn't stop the obligatory flow of expletives (the things we've said about Phil's mother!) as the final whistle draws closer.

However, there are a few minor flaws, the goalkeeping being possibly the worst. You see, it's all too easy to kick the ball directly at a goal post, resulting in an almost suicidal dive by the keeper (missing the ball), and an open goal while he takes ages to get up. Obviously, this is immensely infuriating, leaving a bad taste in the mouth of all purist footballers (such as us).

Well, lo and behold, a new and improved version of Sensible Soccer has now been launched. All the features of the original have been retained, the few faults have been successfully ironed out, and a couple of new options included. Add the opportunity for existing Sensible owners to apply for the updated version and keep their existing copy (for a negligible fee, of course) and you have the game of a lifetime, a product that no self-respecting Amiga user should be without.

Simply the George Best!

For those of you who haven't seen the game (where have you been?), it's played at a fast and furious pace, with tiny players zipping around an overhead-view, scrolling pitch.

Control switches automatically between your players, who dribble by pushing the ball along, Kick Off-style. An almost infinite range of swerved and lobbed shots is made possible by the subtle aftertouch control — the earlier you move the joystick, the greater the effect. Passing to other players in the team is easily achieved by a quick stab of the fire button, resulting in attractive football rather than the usual kicking and hoping seen in most other games. This is aided by the small character sprites, as a great deal of the pitch (about a third) is shown on screen, meaning real tactics play a large part in winning matches.

In Version 1.1, almost all of the rules associated with football have been included, the only exception being the offside rule (it was a disaster in Kick Off 2). The most obvious addition is that of yellow/red cards. These aren't awarded randomly, as in many soccer sims — realistically, 'professional' fouls are usually punished with red cards; normal heavy tackles with yellow. The satisfaction gained from seeing your best friend's star forward sent off is immense, especially when they receive the consequent two/three-match ban.

However, the most important improvement of all is that the goalkeepers now play like real keepers, rather than triple-jump athletes high on Lucozade. Not picking up back-passes (dribbling instead), pushing the ball around and over the woodwork, as well as catching it in mid dive are all now commonplace. This makes for better football, as you need to perform clever attacking moves to have a chance of scoring.

These improvements complement the extra options (such as World Cup qualifying rounds and better European Cup implementation) a treat. Yes, the best football sim ever has just got better. This is the game to buy an Amiga for. Miss it at your peril.

TIP TIME! Redirect headers and sliding tackles at 45 degree angles by quickly changing direction before connecting with the ball. This really confuses your opponent — and his goalie!

RICH PICKINGS ROAD RASH

■ Electronic Arts,
£25.99

How many times while racing on your fave biking game have you had the sudden urge to kick your opponents off? How often do you feel your racing games lack a tasty touch of mindless violence?

If your answer to the above is 'a lot', Road Rash is the game for you. The idea is to win each race while making sure your opponents eat dirt as frequently as possible. This is done by either punching or kicking them — both catered for by friendly joystick control — and can (if you aim properly) result in the opponent flying off their bike and under the oncoming traffic!

There are five levels in all, with access being gained when you've achieved fourth place or above on all five tracks in the current level. The first level isn't much of a problem (joystick prodigy James completed it on his first go) but later ones are more interesting (not to mention tricky). So, rather than let you slog through the initial stages every time you play, the programmers have been thoughtful — an excellent password system complements the action, cutting out a great deal of would-be frustration.

As with Nigel Mansell's (Gremlin's latest racing offering — also reviewed this ish), the speed is fantastic. Your bike glides around corners, over hills and along straights with the greatest of ease. It's ironic that the game's only graphical fault is that the bike does appear to glide, with no road contact whatsoever. Perhaps a shadow could have remedied this, Mr Programmer...

“Your bike glides around corners with the greatest of ease”

■ At last! An Amiga magazine with enough suss to print decent shots!

All the same, Road Rash injects a little originality into a theme snowed under by 'accurate simulations'. While these may be enjoyable for some, arcade representations are far more easily accessible. Road Rash's lastability may be a trifle questionable (simulations tend to win out here), but it's still a damn good race for your money.

TIP TIME! Try and time the punching correctly to knock opponents off their bikes, delaying them considerably — especially if they get hit by a truck!

TEARAWAY THOMAS

■ Soundware,
£25.99

The days of animals sleeping in front of the fireplace or hibernating for the winter seem to be a thing of the past as another turbo-charged fluffy hits the Amiga scene. Starring a cute little dog with a red sweater, Tearaway Thomas is the latest in the seemingly endless line of Sonic/Mario-inspired platform hoppers.

Running through the assorted scrolling landscapes is a bundle of fun, our canine chum bouncing from platform to platform with a grace usually associated with great athletes. Using this ability, Tearaway has to collect a set amount of gems from each level to open an exit to the next stage.

On his travels he comes across varied opponents, most of which follow movement patterns that are easily avoided — although if a collision does occur, no lives are lost. Instead, the small amount of time allocated for that particular level is accelerated for a moment while Thomas recovers. Should the timer reach zero, his life counter is reduced by one and he has to attempt the area again.

“A game that lies somewhere between Sonic and Rainbow Islands”

What attracted us to Tearaway Thomas was the lightning speed and clever use of obvious influences. Rather than just surreptitiously thieving other programmers ideas, the development team have built upon existing techniques, coming up with a game that lies somewhere between Sonic and Rainbow Islands. If you can't get enough of these games (we certainly can't!), Tearaway is a fast mover well worth catching.

TIP TIME! Jump on thin parts of the ground to find hidden bonus rooms full of goodies.

SABRE TEAM

■ Krisalis, £25.99

Once upon a time there was a game called Laser Squad. Essentially, it was a strategy-orientated affair, allowing the player to arm a team of experienced rebels and send them on one of several missions. These could take the form of an assassination attempt, a rescue, or even escape. The screen display was a strange mixture of overhead and side-on views, with an 'intelligent' line-of-sight feature that meant enemies couldn't be seen unless they were in your team's field of vision.

Sabre Team is similar to Laser Squad in quite a few areas. Movement and actions are made by use of 'Action Points'. At the start of every game turn, each character has an initial total of APs (which can be reduced by injury or carrying too much) to spend on various useful functions. For example, if a team member has 41 APs, he could open a door (costing 4 APs) prime a grenade (6 APs) and throw the explosive through the open door (7 APs), leaving him with 24 APs to run away (at a cost of 5 per 'step').

Of course, there are many other actions (aiming/firing various weapons, picking up/dropping objects etc) available in what is a very effective roleplaying system. Once you're satisfied with your soldiers' movements, clicking on the End Turn icon makes your computer opponent begin its turn — sadly there's no two-player option.

As in Laser Squad, there are different scenarios to play: five in all, ranging from a jungle POW camp rescue to a daring embassy assault. Only here you have to play them in a set order.

A different view

The most obvious difference from Laser Squad is the use of isometric 3-D. The graphics are clear and well drawn, with the 'line of sight' feature implemented to the full (nice piece of programming). However, the game has its drawbacks. The main problem arises when it comes to the computer's turn; you have to suffer quite a lengthy wait. This can be accelerated by holding down the left mouse button, but there's still a frustrating amount of time when the player has no control and nothing to keep them occupied. Another (albeit minor) gripe is that there's no option to select a default team — which would offer the option of jumping straight into the action, without the tedium of time-consuming character selection.

Don't think for a second that Sabre Team is a second-rate rip-off of an original product. Essentially, it builds upon foundations set by Laser Squad, but falls down in a few small areas that may irritate some. Try before you buy.

TIP TIME! When arming your team, make sure to give them plenty of (the correct!) ammunition for their weapons, as it's used up at an alarming rate.

“It builds upon foundations set by Laser Squad” behaviour patterns of Cyt and Ron's many assailants. Ranging from Bouncers (which, as the name suggests, bounce around the play area) to Tanks (armed with deadly missiles), the enemies can make light work of destruction unless handled correctly.

■ Robotic frolics as Cyt and Ron go on the rampage! Rattle around the labyrinthine levels, rescuing scientists, blasting the baddies and having a good time. Fast, furious fun with guns!

Obviously, it makes good sense to ambush the tanks from behind to avoid coming into their line of fire, but it's quite difficult to do this while avoiding other creatures — liberating the boffins, therefore, ain't at all easy.

Cytron's the sort of game that'll appeal tremendously to some, while leaving others cold. In addition, the 30-quid price tag seems a little steep for a game of this type, even taking the quality into consideration.

TIP TIME! Don't go in with all guns blazing — you'll be shot to pieces. Instead, sneak around and try to catch enemies from behind.

“What makes the game so different is the behaviour patterns of assailants”

Taking the part of Cytron, a robot with the ability to separate into two component beings (namely Cyt and Ron!), your objective is to infiltrate the many levels of the Coracon complex. It turns out that the extensive underground research centre has been overrun by its 'experiments', which include all manner of killing-machines and creatures. Ideally these deadly creations would have been left to kill each other in their own sweet time, but for the many scientists are trapped inside the maze-like levels...

CYTRON

■ Psygnosis, £29.99

Possibly the most famous plan-view game of all, Gauntlet was flawed slightly by the lack of any strategic element. Even with the two-player option, the action tended to be fast-and-furious blasting, requiring little thought or planning.

With Cytron, the programmers have used the classic maze shoot-'em-up formula as the basis for a refreshingly different arcade/strategy game, while retaining the fast action that makes most games in this genre so compulsive.

PINBALL FANTASIES

FULL PRICE REVIEWS

RICH PICKINGS

■ 21st Century Entertainment, £25.99

Pinball tables. How many of us have pumped in 10p after 10p on our favourite machine only to find we haven't got enough money for some candyfloss? Quite a few we'll wager. Well, at last a decent pinball simulation has arrived.

If there's anyone out there who's never used a pinball table, we'll eat our trousers! But essentially it's a doddle: after catapulting your ball up the table, the idea is to prevent it going out of play using two button-operated flippers. If the ball falls down the gap between these, or into the gulley to either side, and you lose one of your balls (sounds nasty, and it can be!).

With good timing, the flippers can be used to smash the ball into the many targets. Points are gained quickly this way, the ball flying over ramps and generally being knocked around by the scenery.

Fantasy four-play

Up to four people can flip out on Fantasies' quartet of themed tables: Partyland, Speed Devils, Billion Dollar Gameshow and Stones 'N' Bones (our fave). You'll soon find one you prefer over the others, and in no time at all, you'll be finding all those secret bonuses.

This is the beauty of Pinball Fantasies. If there were a set amount of points available and blatantly apparent on each table, you'd get bored pretty quickly. Luckily, there's a myriad of different conditions affecting the scoring system, allowing astronomical sums to be accumulated in a fairly short time. This, coupled with other great little touches such as the ability to 'rock' the table, makes Pinball

In no time at all, you'll be finding all those secret bonuses

■ From Soho down to Brighton we thought we'd seen 'em all — we hadn't!

Fantasies a must-buy for all deaf, dumb and blind kids!

TIP TIME! Learn to rock the table at the right time to alter the path of the ball to your advantage — don't overdo it or the 'tilt' sensor deactivates your flippers.

LOCOMOTION

■ Demonware, £25.99

You'd have thought ideas for puzzle games would be a bit thin on the ground by now, but Demonware have come up with a new one in Locomotion.

The press release didn't exactly leave us expecting wonders, describing the game as 'appealing to train and puzzle fans alike'.

Visions of anoraks and notepads sprang immediately to mind! Luckily, it owes more to puzzles and intelligent thought than British Rail, so all was smiles — for a while at least.

In Locomotion, you have a number of stations linked together by sections of track. Some of the latter can be manipulated to cut off certain routes, while making others more easily accessible. Every now and again, a train will leave a station, a letter indicating its destination. You have to ensure the vehicle a safe journey along the tracks, changing junctions to guide it through the maze-like layout.

Train of thought

Complications occur when more than one train is in circulation at any given time. This is where real thought is necessary, because collisions are fatal — and while you're still reeling from that, there's a tight time limit into the bargain. Fail to get your quota of trains into their appropriate stations and its game over.

That's about it, really. For a full-price game, you'd expect a little more. Okay, so you get a track editor for when the existing levels have bored or frustrated you, but a couple of inexpertly designed courses are hardly going to prolong your enjoyment.

Locomotion would have been ideal for budget release. As train puzzle games go, it's probably the best so far, but full-price material it ain't. It makes British Rail sarnies look good VFM!

TIP TIME! It's best to deal with one train at a time, rather than having them all milling about aimlessly.

For a full-price game, you'd expect a little more

RICH PICKINGS KGB

■ Virgin, £30.99

With the collapse of the old Soviet Union, and the disbanding of the KGB, this game's plot is a little out of date. The story revolves around a character named Makism Rokov, who's just received a transfer to Department P. The latter's function is to sniff out corruption in the KGB secret service — a kind of police for the police, if you like.

Your first task seems to be a routine checkup. A man known as Golitsin — private investigator and (more importantly) ex-KGB — has been murdered under mysterious circumstances. Due to the sensitive nature of all KGB officers' knowledge, it seemed appropriate someone should be sent out to examine the loose ends. With further investigation (and the following of various leads) the true 'nature of the beast' is revealed...

Interactive interrogation

In Issue One of AMIGA FORCE we reviewed a game called Fascination. It was a pointer/icon-that required the operator to explore and examine static screens, finding clues to puzzles. KGB follows this theme, only with a great deal more depth in terms of (occasionally animated) graphics, interaction and brain-taxing decisions.

The Amiga is the perfect home for the thriller-orientated RPG/adventure genre and at last it seems somebody has done a little research and come up with the goods. KGB knocks the socks off nearly every game based on this theme and more — the characters behave like real people, as opposed to cardboard cutouts acting out badly written scripts.

Also, the wealth of options mean your approach can be suited to your mood at the time of play. For example, in the beginning you're required to question a suspect, namely the deceased's sister. If you wish to use heavy-handed techniques to obtain information from her then so be it — KGB will cater for your needs...

The chilling atmosphere and wonderful presentation make KGB a must for all who like depth and interaction in their computer games. Very, very, highly recommended.

TIP TIME! Don't be too threatening when interrogating suspects — otherwise they'll clam up.

The characters behave like real people

■ Your suspects tend to be cagey; in fact, cagey they be! (That's it, you're fired —Ed)

NIGEL MANSELL'S WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP

■ Gremlin, £29.99

Driving games are two a penny these days, ranging from accurate simulations (such as Geoff Crammond's Formula One Grand Prix) to simple left/right/accelerate affairs (Lotus Turbo Esprit). While both these types appeal to different people, it was always on the cards that a compromise would be produced. Nigel Mansell's fits that description and adds something extra: speed.

You may think Lotus and other sprite-based games shift a bit, but Mansell's beats them all. Roaring around the tracks is incredibly compulsive — not to mention hair-raising at times. The satisfaction of overtaking a computer opponent is fantastic (as is winning a race) because, in the long run, racing against the clock offers little in the way of lasting appeal.

Roaring around the tracks is incredibly compulsive

Custom cars

Mansell's also offers a lot in the way of options. Rather than being lumbered with the same car for every race, you're allowed to customise certain aspects to suit your needs. Changing gearboxes has never been this much fun (or this easy) but it's great when you start the race to find your mechanical decision has paid off. You see, changing things such as tyres and aerofoils affects cornering, acceleration and top speed. Getting the right combination to suit the current track gives you that all-important edge, although the default settings are good enough for those wanting to wade straight into the action.

Now, the criticism! While Mansell's is a superlative driving game, there are still a few nagging glitches. For a start, it takes too long during disk access — not tremendously long, but just enough to irritate. Secondly, it's just too easy! The practice mode (although a nice touch) is pretty unnecessary, as the main game can be mastered in such a short space of time. After my first four races in the championship, I'd won three and come second in one, giving me a total of 36 points on the challenge table — a full 21 clear of my nearest rival.

Nevertheless, the speed is astounding and, although the challenge is unsatisfying, the game offers great racing thrills. Pity there isn't a two-player mode, though — we're kinda getting used to them...

TIP TIME! Here's a handy tip for Nigel Mansell: have a shave, that moustache is naff! But seriously, use slipstreaming to get past the faster opponents.

■ With beautifully detailed cars, accurate tracks and a real feeling of speed, Nigel Mansell's World Championship looks like a strong contender for the pole position...

WEEN

■ Coktel Vision, £25.99

Ween is a graphical adventure very much in the same vein as Fascination (reviewed in Issue 1) and KGB (this ish), although this time the plot is twisted around a fantasy scenario.

The (rather poor) story line sends you on a mission to thwart an evil sorcerer. Along the way you receive help and advice from a man called Petroy and Urm, a vampire (?) with an insatiable hunger for strawberries.

Puzzles must be solved to ensure safe progress. These range from the simple finding of objects to complex, multi-task actions. Both Urm and Petroy can offer advice and assistance should things become too tricky (or obscure, for that matter), but they seem to be a dumb pair of no-hopers — you end up doing nigh on everything yourself.

To the point

The adventure is pointer driven, with you moving the cursor around the screen to find objects and use them at the appropriate moments. We found ourselves scratching our heads quite a bit, because the difficulty level is on the high side. Fortunately this doesn't detract from the game — quite the opposite, in fact: it's good to have a decent challenge for your money. After all, no amount of pretty graphics can make up for the absence of lastability.

Speaking of which, Ween is also very competent in the graphical stakes, with some great little animated sequences accompanying certain puzzles. This adds a lot of atmosphere — very important in this genre — but the disk accessing between screens is a little lengthy.

While Ween is a definite improvement on Fascination, it's rather eclipsed by the sheer brilliance of KGB.

As an adventure game, it's great — but we recommend you try Virgin's little gem before buying this.

TIP TIME! Check out pages 60–61 of this AMIGA FORCE for a detailed guide to the first three locations!

The difficulty level is on the highside

■ Atmospheric, absorbing and usually logical, this is a good adventure for beginners to cut their teeth on...

■ Stormin' Normans abound in this weird and wonderful arcade conversion from Domark.

RAMPART

■ Domark, £25.99

The official conversion of the cult Atari coin-op, Rampart can only be described as an arcade-puzzler with strategy overtones! You start by choosing your castle from a selection placed on the single-screen play area. Having done this, a wall is automatically built around the perimeter, allowing space for gun turrets. These are placed in the second game section, where an assortment of single-shot weapons are made available, for use inside the walls only (gasp!).

Hereon lies the arcade element. After preparing and arming your castle, a fleet of boats begins to move towards you, firing with accuracy and malicious intent. Rather than aiming for the tower or your gun turrets (which are indestructible anyway) they concentrate on the walls.

Don't miss the boat

You must sink the enemy quickly to minimise the damage. Unfortunately your guns are weak, and can only fire one shot at a time. And it's a looping missile that has to be aimed carefully with the cursor, lest the target moves before it arrives. Even with the most accurate of aiming, some of your castle will be decimated.

Which brings us quite neatly onto the fourth (and final) stage, where you repair the damage with strangely shaped, Tetris-style building blocks. These can only be placed on unoccupied land, so quick thinking is needed to seal off all the gaps within the time limit. If there's little damage, you can try and expand your fortress to surround one of the other towers on the landscape, allowing more space for gun emplacements.

Each of the four sections has to be completed in a fairly tight time limit, so the action gets pretty frenetic. However, the limited gameplay in solo games offers little long-term appeal. It's in two-player mode that Rampart excels. The basic idea's much the same, but instead of fighting ships, you engage in combat with another human, both controlling your own castles.

This offers great scope for arguments and name calling (which is what you play multi-player games for, basically!). Rampart is definitely the game to buy if you've got lots of friends. Otherwise, get a life!

It's in two-player mode that Rampart excels

TIP TIME! In two-player mode, don't decimate whole walls of your opponent's castle. Instead, hit alternate blocks along each wall — the small gaps are harder to fill when he comes to rebuild.

RICH PICKINGS

THE GRANDSLAM COLLECTION

■ Grandslam Video, £29.99

Each game in this ten-game pack costs over a pound less than your average 8-bit budget game. There are better compilations, but if you like sheer quantity, look no further...

THE RUNNING MAN

■ Some games are victims of their own design, rather than poor programming. After all, if the basic concept is unsound, it's a fair bet the game will be unplayable. This is the problem with The Running Man.

It's a sideways-scrolling platform game based (pretty loosely) on the film of the same name. We'd have thought a little more could have been done with the licence, but your character runs like a zombie, and the control method seems to have been thought up by one!

THE FLINTSTONES

■ Split across three levels, The Flintstones follows a day in the life of everyone's favourite prehistoric family. Fred wants to go bowling with his good chum, Barney, although his wife Wilma has other ideas. She's told him that unless he decorates the living room, his ten-pin fun won't happen.

The second level is where the bowling takes place, with Fred competing against the computer-controlled Barney. Beat him, and you discover (on the way home) that Pebbles, Fred's cute little daughter, has escaped. It's platform frolics ahoy in his bid to save her.

The Flintstones is a curious mash of a decorate-'em-up, bowling simulation and platform game. It's not exactly yabba dabba doo time, but it's not yabba dabba don't, either!

SCRAMBLE SPIRITS

■ Vertically scrolling shoot-'em-ups offer great scope for mindless fun, if thought out correctly. Scramble Spirits is a particularly mediocre example, but is still an enjoyable blast (for a while anyway). Licensed from a coin-op we've never had the pleasure of seeing, Spirits carries all the obligatory features associated with modern blasters, even if they don't work as well as they could.

■ The Running Man is savaged (above-left), Scramble Spirits goes down in flames (above), while Terramex gets a mixed reception.

ESPIONAGE

■ This is one of those duff board-game conversions that don't work because (a) they're not very good, and (b) they're not very good. Now, you may notice that's actually only one reason (repeated twice) but it was such an important point, we felt it deserved reiterating. We don't like it, we never have, and never will. Next!

TERRY'S BIG ADVENTURE

■ This game is an early attempt at bringing Mario-style games onto the Amiga. It's not a remarkable success, but has a certain amount of charm. If you like simple, unastounding platform games, Terry's won't disappoint. But with games like Krusty's arriving on the scene, we've got little time for such mediocrity.

SAINT AND GREAVSIE

■ A curious one, this. It's a football trivia game that puts up to four players into a football-league-style table. Points are accrued by answering the multiple-choice questions, and there's a short goalkeeping sequence if you get the question right.

For football trivia fans it's a fairly good laugh — others won't be so over the moon.

TRIVIA

■ The second (and thankfully last) quiz game included on the compilation is fairly simplistic in design, but moderately compulsive nonetheless. Like Saint And Greavsie the questions are multiple choice, but if you want a decent quiz game, get The Hit Squad's Trivial Pursuit.

ENGLAND

■ England is by far the best game on Grandslam's little blue disks. Excellent presentation and enjoyable footy gameplay makes this perfect budget material (even though it's been superseded by Sensible Soccer).

■ Oi Terry, it was Barry who killed your missus and kid!

TERRAMEX

■ The office is fairly divided in its opinion of this. Half of us think it's a pile, while the other half insist that it's good. A platformer, Terramex is unremarkable in its 8-bit design, but an adequate challenge if you like the genre. We've seen this on three computer formats and it's strange to note that the Spectrum version is the best of them!

PETER BEARDSLEY

■ This is the worst football game we've seen on the Amiga so far. The players act as if drunk, and the artificial intelligence — what artificial intelligence?

FORCE mail

Unlike certain other Amiga magazines, we decided to wait until we actually received some correspondence from our readers before going ahead and printing a letters page. So far, though, the vast majority of your missives have been mostly sycophantic (or psychotic!) affairs which, although welcome, are hardly the most stimulating of things to print. We've pulled out the best of the bunch, however, and here they are.

If you've anything you'd like to say, ask, shout or mumble, and which you think could be of interest to other readers, send it to: Force 9 Mail, AMIGA FORCE, Eurompress Impact, Ludlow, Shropshire SY8 1JW. Sorry, but we can't give personal replies through the post...

DING DONG — AVON CALLING!

At last the people who brought us CRASH are unleashed upon an unsuspecting Amiga scene. As an ex-Speccy owner (who even bought binders for his copies of CRASH!) the prospect is most pleasing. I'm very chuffed (thought there was a funny smell).

Anyway, good luck with the magazine, I hope it can find an appropriate niche. And now some questions:

- 1) Is there going to be a large letters section?
- 2) Will Oliver Frey be coming back to do some of his most excellent cover artwork?
- 3) Do you know when the software houses are going to sort out the compatibility problem of those odd games that won't run on the A600, eg. Swiv (for goodness sake, how much money do Kixx want to flush down the lavvy by ignoring the rapidly expanding A600 market?).
- 4) Will you have a small, computer-related comic strip that's really quite funny actually. My asking has nothing to do with the fact that I'm a freelance illustrator with no jobs at the mo' who could do you a very nice one for not much cash at all.

Well that's it from me, I wish you every success with AMIGA FORCE, even with the console-ish title logo. I hope you'll end up with a really individual and original mag as good as CRASH was.

Cheers!

Gareth Foster, Weston-Super-Mare, Avon

- Thanks for your kind comments, Gareth, here's what you want to know: A 'large' letters section? Well, we're certainly not going to devote any more than five pages to letters — and what size it ends up each month very much depends on the quality and quantity of the letters received...

Oli Frey will indeed be coming back to do our covers, providing he's not too tied up with the posters every issue! How do you like his double-sided masterpiece this ish?

As far as compatibility problems go, Commodore assured me that, for the 'paltry' sum of £300 year, no compatibility problems should have arisen! Basically, if every software house paid Commodore's registration fee they'd be constantly updated as to what's happening in the wide world of Commodore — with details on how to avoid any compatibility cock-ups occurring.

And as for a 'small, computer-related comic strip', send me three samples (in colour) and, if they're good enough, I'll pay you £50 apiece for 'em. Okay?

Steve

SONGS OF PRAISE

Well, I've tried them all, and at last there's one that gives me the information I want. And — thank God — no cover disks!

You're the first mag to give me a map of one of my games, tips for another and really interesting PD and Shareware info.

As one of your older readers (I'll admit to being in my forties) I felt I had to write and say thank you.

Keep up the excellent work, and when's the next issue?

M Buckley, Greasby, Wirral

- Thanx M, that's what we like to hear. Er, you're holding the next issue now — the following one will go sale on the 18th of Feb, okay?

Steve

THE GLOVES ARE OFF...

Congratulations on your launch of AMIGA FORCE. I'd just like to say how excellent it is, especially the Driving Force feature. I'm twelve years old and own an Amiga A500. I have a friend who owns an Atari ST 520 and I'd just like to get off my chest how full of crap it is. I mean, it has a joystick port under the keyboard, and that thing Atari claim is a mouse which comes with the pack... you should understand what I'm trying to say! So please send me some facts on the Atari ST 520, and good luck on the next issue of AMIGA FORCE!

Rupinder Bhars, West Harrow, London

- Sorry, Rupinder, but I don't have any details on the Atari ST 520 — other than it's roughly oblong shaped and good for holding doors open with!

ONE POTATO, TWO... ANOTHER?

Congratulations on the successful launch of AMIGA FORCE. Firstly, may I take this opportunity to wish you and your superb team success for '93, and years to come for that matter.

I was slightly disappointed with AMIGA FORCE's news section as it was very short. I hope you expand this section as time progresses.

As I flicked through the games I didn't find the Gallup charts for Amiga games. Are you even going to feature it in your future issues?

PONGS OF SPRAYS

Just a few lines to say how pleased and impressed I was to read your new magazine. Many thanks to your team for producing this excellent Amiga owner's guide to game playing.

AMIGA FORCE was easy to read, well presented and gave great advice for games I already own, but have difficulty negotiating. There was definitely a need on the market for this magazine with no 'cover disks' (not that I particularly dislike them).

Could you advise me when the next issue is due, and will you be providing a subscription potential at some point in the future?

One other thing. I recommended AMIGA FORCE to a couple of friends and they found scratch-cards inside their issue, but I didn't get one.

Mr Andy Ash, Newport, IOW

- We're blowing our own trumpet this month all right. See page 80 for subscription details, Andy, and the above reply for details of the next OSD.

Steve

DISGUSTED

Well done, your first issue and you've put me off buying your second.

Have you ever tried Christmas shopping for a three year old who loves his Amiga, and has everything for it? You soon run out of ideas. So when you wrote in the News section 'pointless joysticks' referring to Bart, Batman and Alien 3 etc, you really ped me off.

Instead of being sarcastic, why not be a little helpful instead — after all it would be 99% of children wanting these joysticks!

K Ratcliffe, Westfield, Sheffield

PS. I hope Santa brings you a sense of humour!

- Who the hell rattled your cage? We are here to entertain and inform but, while we try to achieve this in equal measures, it isn't always possible. Having tested the Character Stick range personally I found

In your Public Domain section there's a good variety of different games, but it seems you've left out the utilities, for example workbench (Quickbench). I hope that you feature more and more competitions like the free Amigas. To find out what we readers would like, why not carry a questionnaire to help improve your magazine even more? I hope you publish this letter, Steve Shields, because if you don't you are a couch potato!

Anthony Persuad, Hayes, Middlesex

■ First off, Anthony, I've never denied that I am indeed a couch potato, with years of practice! As far as the news section goes, yes, we do intend to expand it eventually, and sales charts are in the pipeline. Utilities will be included in the PD section if enough people want them featured — for the time being though we're planning on covering just the games. And a questionnaire is also planned for a future issue. Happy now? Good.

Spud U Like Shields.

CHEATED!

I was flicking through my friend's SEGA FORCE and I saw an advert for your brill mag, so I got on my bike and pedalled down to the local newsagents and bought a copy. When I got home I saw it had a cheat for Gods (which I'd been struggling on for months). So I loaded Gods and typed in SORCERY as a password and, lo and behold, it didn't work. I tried it for ages and it still didn't work, can you explain this?

Phillip Martin, Wimborne, Dorset

■ Ah, yes, well, erm. Okay, we got it wrong! After a quick call to Renegade — which we should have made before printing the tip — the full story became clear. A while ago, the company produced a special, experimental NTSC version of

DEAR SANTA...

I enjoyed your first issue of this amazing Amiga magazine. Please, please send me details of the next issue because you didn't state when it would be available. I'm pleased you haven't put any silly demo disks on your mag because they cost so much more and I wouldn't be able to try them anyway as I haven't got an Amiga yet, but I should be getting one for Christmas.

Now I suppose you think I'm a bit nutty for buying your mag and not having an Amiga. Well I bought it so I could see what good games to buy and to get a load of cheats. I loved the Cut-Out 'N' Cheats and the feature. I hope you'll carry on with both of these even though it'll be hard to get so many cheats. I'd also like to know if there's going to be a membership club: if there is I would like to join.

Keep up the good work and I hope you can answer my questions.

L Keating, South Norwood, London

■ To be perfectly honest, L, we needed to see if we could shift enough copies of AMIGA FORCE #1 to make Issue #2 a reality. At the end of the day the sales figures exceeded even MY wildest dreams (somebody out there loves us!). That's why no date was printed for the second one. As far as membership to the AMIGA FORCE club goes, every reader's an automatic member! The membership fee is just £1.95 a month, and for that you get a great magazine absolutely free!

Steve

Gods for the US which did have the SORCERY cheat mode. Some blighter got hold of a copy, sent us the cheat, and we were dumb enough to print it without checking it out first. I'm not going to use the old 'but we weren't the only Amiga mag to use it' excuse, but, we weren't the only Amiga mag to use it!

OH, FOR THE WINGS!

I recently purchased Wings but when I loaded it up it asked for a certain word on page 22, line 4. So I looked up the booklet that I got with it, but found to my horror that it had only 19 pages in it! I took the game back to the shop where I purchased it, but the owner said he couldn't do anything about it because the game wasn't faulty. What I then decided to do was to write off to Mirrorsoft but, after I wrote half of the letter, I remembered reading that they went bust. What should I do? Please help me as I don't like spending £25 on two blank disks.

Kenneth Stuart, Ayrshire, Scotland

■ I've tried my to find a solution to your plight, Ken, but the problem isn't a simple one, I'm afraid. Prism Leisure now hold the rights to Wings on the Amiga, and at present they're holding 'hundreds of Wings disks that we can't sell! The disks were bought from Mirrorsoft along with the rights enabling them to sell the game, only no instruction books came with them! Prism are currently deciding if it would be worth their while rewriting the manual. Until that decision is made, I'd go back to the shop and demand your money back — if you can't play it, they shouldn't have been stocking it, faulty or not. See your local Citizen's Advice Bureau if they refuse...

POINTS FOR DISKUSSION

Flight. I've got a suggestion — if you're prepared to cover many pages of tips and cheats etc, but not willing to have a cover disk, then put two and two together and what have you got? A cover disk packed with tips, cheats and maps 'n' stuff.

I'm sorry but I hate those CHEAT CARD things. It's not their contents, that's excellent, it's just that you mention that it would be quicker to use them rather than searching for hours through old issues of mags. I think it would be much easier to load a cover disk that contains a tip you're looking for rather than faffing about with a flimsy cheat card that could easily get lost (well, easier than a disk anyway). That's ironic too — CHEAT CARDS. More like cheat paper! Don't they sound exciting? As you said, most cover disks are rarely looked at more than once, but something like a tips disk would be referred to millions of times. What you could do is have a specific game type tipped on the disks each month. For example, one issue you could cover driving games on the disk, and the next you could do platform games, and so on. Another thing you mentioned was the money. If you had a cover disk you said it would cause quite an increase in the price of the magazine. My answer to this is: why not bung adverts on the disk? For example, you could have a background picture of some Kleenex tissues and maybe a soundtrack of someone sniffing or whatever, then in the foreground the tips and cheats written in.

Nick D, Tamworth, Staffs

■ Fair comment. Okay, so the cheat 'cards' are printed on paper, but what else are we supposed to call 'em? And as far as your cheat disk idea goes, great! If you'd like to phone Kleenex for us and get them to sponsor it as you suggested (or any other manufacturer for that matter) I'd be delighted to carry one. You may find that they'd be a bit reluctant to begin with, so just persevere, okay!

Steve

that, although they were well made and responsive, they were just too uncomfortable and cumbersome to use for any length of time. So, even though the news item may not have been that amusing, informative it certainly was and, if it prompted readers to try before buying it served its purpose.

In addition, I must say what a lucky little tot your three-year-old must be. An Amiga at that age? Must be a child prodigy! What will the nipper's tenth birthday bring, the Chairmanship of ICI!? In these recessionary times, some of us are on very limited budgets — I had to wait till I was 26 before I could afford an Amiga of my own! — so the decision to purchase a £13 joystick is not one to be taken lightly.

PS. Heard the one about the spoiled brat who grew up to disrespect its parents? Only joking! (Thanks, Santa...)

Steve

TIPS BITS

Each month in the letters section we'll devote some space to reader tips. Nearly everyone who writes in is stuck on something or other, so the TIPS BITS section will act as a forum where the helpless and clued-up can get together. Obviously, we're not going to be able to spend all our time playing through each game that you're experiencing problems with, so we'll print tip requests here and rely on Good Samaritans to write in with the answers!

To get the ball rolling, then, here are a few queries sent in by

A Roberts of Craven Arms: 'I'm writing to you for a tip on Eye Of The Beholder. Where is the stone gem located which is needed to operate one of the teleport gates? Also, where is the ice storm scroll for the mage located (which level)?'

So, if anyone out there in Amigaland knows the answers to these questions, please write and tell us. Similarly, if there's a particular part of a game that you happen to be having trouble with, drop us a line at the usual address (but mark your letter 'Tips Bits').

CHALLENGE

BEAT 'EM AT THEIR OWN GAME!

Your chance to thrash Sensible at soccer!

Reckon you're a bit of a hotshot at Sensible Soccer — Version 1.1, eh? You've won the league

“Just who is top of the league when it comes to computer footy?”

League, or even the Italian Serie A — the AMIGA FORCE Sensible Superleague is the crème de la crème of football excellence. It's so exclusive, only six members are allowed to join! These include two of the game's programmers, plus the AMIGA FORCE office champion and runner-up.

Get your kit on!

All we need to complete the picture are two footy-mad readers. The successful applicants will win an expenses-paid trip to the AMIGA FORCE offices to meet the crew, the Sensible programmers, and compete in the Sensible Superleague! With a total of 30 matches to play, it'll probably take all day, so we'll provide half-time refreshments (ie lunch!). In addition, you'll become famous overnight when a full league report (including your piccy!) is printed in a future issue of AMIGA FORCE.

The competition's tough, though, so you'll have to be really good. To prove your super skills, send us a disk of saved highlights from either Sensible Soccer — Version 1.1 or the original.

The highlights must show you versus a top computer opponent (we'll be able to tell if you've cheated by playing against a hopeless friend!). Note that the quality of football is more important than the number of goals scored, and our expert judges will analyse your playing style to decide if you're good enough.

Just fill in the coupon below and send it to SENSIBLE SUPERLEAGUE, AMIGA FORCE, Euopress Impact, Ludlow, Shropshire SY8 1JW, along with your saved highlights disk (please write your name and address on the label).

SENSIBLE SPECIAL OFFER!

If you're still thrashing the computer goalkeepers on the original version of Sensible Soccer, you need Version 1.1. As well as providing accurate '92-'93 teams, World Cup qualifiers and yellow/red cards, the update includes much better goalies than before, even catching the ball in mid dive (see our review in this ish for the full lowdown).

It's well worth the £3.95 (+ £1 p&p) you'd normally pay to update your original game, but AMIGA FORCE has negotiated an even better deal for readers. Just send this coupon, plus your original Sensible Soccer disks, to: SENSIBLE SOCCER UPDATE, Renegade, Unit C1L, Metropolitan Wharf, Wapping Wall, London E1 9SS, and they'll send you Version 1.1 PLUS your original disks back — all for the reduced transfer fee of £3.45 (+ £1 p&p)!

PLAYING TIPS

SHADOW OF THE

BEAST

LEVEL ONE THE FOREST OF ZEAKRES

Your first adversaries take the form of pulsating plants which gob great globs of gooey gloop at you! Hang back, jump and fling your shurikans at the beggars — you should manage to mangle 'em without losing ANY energy.

Locate this skull to complete level one. It sure ain't easy — 'ere's 'ow!

The third instalment in the Beast saga from Psygnosis puts their two previous outings firmly in the shade! Okay, so the plot's as dull as dishwater, but with such great gameplay and gorgeous graphics, who cares? Some of the puzzles involved can be positively beastly, however, so here's a handy guide to the first two levels...

Your very first puzzle! Leap onto the platform, face the switch and hit the fire button. Hey presto, up you go!

Jump up to collect the gold, but be prepared to blat the baddies as you land — no problem!

...like this. You can now leg it along the top with no risk of getting impaled on the spikes below.

After the goblins have been dispatched, jog over to this wheel and keep pressing fire until the platforms are level...

PLAYING TIPS

The grenades make short work of these lethal gun-turrets so jump, dodge and throw for your life until you reach the key — which is on the fourth and final floating platform.

After you've picked up the key, leap along to the left where you'll locate this treasure room. 'F1' selects the key, and fire opens the door. You can now grab the gold and continue your journey armed with the shurikans.

Pause only long enough to shoot the roasting meat off the spit...

...and as you continue right you'll automatically move the meat before you. Pick up the key as you pass...

...then deposit the enemy's would-be supper beneath the spiky block exactly as shown. Now dash back to free the beast!

...and over the edge...

...where it lands on the swinging platform...

...enabling you to successfully jump the gap!

When you reach this huge hog, take care not to shoot the door which keeps him at bay and run right, frantically shooting everything that moves.

10

While avoiding any enemy fire, quickly select the key and unlock the door. Extreme caution is required, as you'll need to leap up on the ladder before the boar bores down on you. If you're quick enough, you can drop down and follow it, titting to yourself as Maletoth's minions are trampled into the ground! Now that the beast has bitten the dust, you can walk past it to get the gold and discover the way up.

11

As you land atop the platform, it zooms heavenward through the shaft. Steer it left and right by walking to its edges...

...just ensure that it's not only on the left of the shaft, but perfectly level to boot. The huge boulder will now rise with you on the platform. If you muck it up, just drop back down the shaft and repeat the procedure till you get it right! Honestly, it's not that difficult.

Jump up to collect the grenades, and immediately hit 'F1' to select them for use

You can walk in front of spikes safely, just don't jump!

This stone pillar erupts from the ground blocking any hope of escape. Just ignore it and continue running over to the left.

14

Deadly steel columns whoosh out from pipes buried in the hill-side in a very threatening fashion...

...shoot them repeatedly and head for the safe spaces in between. Tricky, but not impossible!

You can have a bit of a breather once you reach this bridge — and guess what, you're going to need it!

16

Right then, only this little critter to polish off and you've cracked it! Keep retreating and advancing, avoiding his deadly fireballs, all the while leaping up and shooting him with your shurikans. His bark is worse than his bite, remember, so stay calm, don't panic and KEEP FIRING!

See? That wasn't so bad, was it? And there's the sucker's skull just waiting to be picked up.

Well done, the first part of your quest is complete

LEVEL TWO FORT DOURMOOR

Level Two conceals this vicious-looking ball, here's how to get hold of it and escape...

What? No bridge? Just crouch down, fling a shurikan at the lever, and just like magic, the bridge drops into place.

...jump over it and turn around...

...then roll it back over the bridge to the battering ram. It's easy, just walk with it!

As you roll the wheel into its place...

...the battering ram magically mends itself!

If you're trying to fix that busted battering ram, you're going about it the wrong way so run right.

Aha! This demon dude's got hold of the missing wheel, so...

...because when you step onto the trap door the pulley pulls open the lid allowing the beggars out!

Now jump into the hollow vacated by the bees and shoot the yellow block...

...till it disappears.

Then when you leap back upon the trap door, you'll find it gives waaaaaay!

While you trundle along to the right once more, the ram rolls with you. On reaching the locked door, the log swings to and fro making matchwood of it, while the 'roof' protects you from the flaming fireballs from above.

Now you're safely through the shattered door, cross the little bridge and crouch down exactly where indicated — allowing the skull-crunching brass balls to pass harmlessly overhead. Shoot the angled rebounder-thing from this position...

These wicked wasp-type things are buzzing to bite your bottom — and they'll get the chance in a minute...

Dispatch 'em with your throwing stars before grabbing the gold.

Aargh! It's a trap! To save your bacon, jump over the table then push it into the room on the left. Jump onto it, crouch down, then shoot the lever which opens the flood gates! When you've floated to the top, shoot the second lever and wait till most of the water drains out.

10

Beauty, it's only chin deep! Now you can walk off to the right...

...along the corridor...

...collecting the gold as you pass.

11

Climb the ladder when you reach it...

...and, at the top, push the table to the very edge — but not over it!

You can now shoot the barrel-bowling butt-faced beggar from atop the table without conceding any hits. Simply leap each time he's about to hurl one, and keep firing. Otherwise, this'll happen!

Once he's begun his journey to Monster Heaven, you can shunt the table off the edge and jump the gap...

...then leg it 'behind' the crate...

...where you'll be safe.

Shoot the crate till it explodes (it'll flash to indicate it's being hit) to create driftwood...

...which you can use to leap along to the right safely avoiding the water. If you do muck it up and sink, you'll have a split-second to jump back onto a floating plank before you one of your three lives floats before you.

Walk off the crate and, as you drop, quickly pull left so you end up on the table 'behind' the crate. Don't slip up now!

Now shove the crate along to the left and over the edge...

...followed by your good self.

You'll land on the crate which, in turn, sits on top of the table.

18

With the barrel in place, climb the ladder and turn right — where you'll bump into this fellow!

14

When you reach this barrel, swiftly slide it to the right where indicated and leap the gap.

15

This red devil operates the grabbing doo-dah, which'll lift you up and drop you to your doom if you don't annihilate him in time. To do this, keep jumping up-left and up-right, while flinging shurikans at him for all you're worth.

16

After you've rubbed out the red devil, nip down the ladder and punch this trap door shut. Then climb back to the platform above.

The plungers on the block that the demon was diddling with manipulate the grabbing device.

Punch the plungers in and out to move the grabber about in this way: Top — opens and closes the claw (you have to jump to reach it); Middle — moves the claw left and right; Bottom — for up and down. By careful manipulation you can pick up the barrel and deposit it here on the conveyor belt.

Hop out of the barrel, and once you've legged it onto terra firma you're away. Well done!

Well done, you have escaped with Pendek's mace and all of the gold.

Keep jumping over his chain mace, all the while whacking shurikans into the stump of his neck.

He'll pop his clogs eventually, and look! There's the spiky ball!

Well, done, you have found Pendek's mace, now escape from his fortress

19

Carry on past old stumpy features to collect this gold, then turn around and leg it back past the top of the ladder heading left.

21

Jump into the barrel (you'll know when you're in, as you'll be unable to move left or right!)

...then crouch down to close the barrel lid and you'll be home and (hopefully!) dry.

20

You may need to change your trousers by the time reach here, and, if you keep your distance you should be able to manage it without much fuss. Do a running jump over the ball as it swings towards you...

...in order to get the gold and repeat the performance in reverse. Great! Now get back and down the ladder and escape.

Once you're safely inside, shoot a shurikan at the lever...

The lever you just shot activates the conveyor belt, which carries the barrel (and you!) along and drops you off down here. The ugly green geezer will stomp over and drag the barrel over the trap door which you punched earlier — dropping you into the drink below!

A lazy sail downstream later and you've made it.

PLAYING TIPS

So, the Ninja of the Nth dimension has crashed onto a land undocumented on any maps, eh? We'll soon fix that: here's the first two massive levels of Music World, so now there's no excuse for not hitting the right note!

Ghetto-Blaster: Collect this for 10,000 points!

Shield: Gives temporary invulnerability. Shields are usually located near to where you'll really need them, ie a really hard section, full of enemies.

SC 005,124

Smart Bomb: This destroys all enemies on screen.

1UP: An extra life. These are few and far between.

Jumping Zool: Temporarily gives Zool improved jumping power to reach those high platforms.

Twozool: Creates a Zool clone to follow him round, shadowing all his actions. The main benefit is twice as many bullets are fired. It wears off after a while.

COLLECTABLES

RESTART

Watch out! This platform dissolves, sending you crashing onto the spikes below.

Jump into here and you're transported to the horizontally scrolling shoot-'em-up level.

LEVEL
MUSIC

Let the music carry you away! Alternatively, jump up the wall, but watch out for the rising amplifier.

RESTART

Crawl along here to grab the bonuses, and hit the restart point. Jump off before the electric spark gets you.

Grab the bell and it falls on top of Zool, covering him so he can sneak past the baddies!

Extra Time:

Increases the time limit, allowing more scope for searching out those many bonuses.

Record

Compact Disc

Tape

Guitar

Headphones

Microphone

Collect all these for points and to allow you to pass through the exit.

Make sure you blast or avoid the clouds, as they stick to your ship, causing damage. Watch out for tubes poking out from the walls: blood corpuscles stream out of them. Make sure you collect all the power-ups and blast, blast, blast!

PLAYING TIPS

CHUPA CHEATS

On the title sequence type in GOLDFISH and the screen should briefly flash blue. You can now skip to any of the six worlds by pressing F1-F6 (F1 = Level 1, F2 = Level 2 etc), and any of their three levels by pressing 1, 2 or 3. For example, to go to World 4's second level you'd press F4, then 2.

You can also cheat while playing the game. Just press the Space Bar with any of the following keys:

- 1 — This makes you invincible for a while (keep pressing it every so often to stay invincible)
- 2 — Takes you to the next level
- 3 — Takes you to the next world
- 4 — Kills you!

REPLAY HACKS

- For Action Replay owners, this poke gives infinite energy (if you need it after all those other cheats!): TFD 1EF5C
- A whopping 65,535 lives can be yours by entering M 22B6A and changing the first two numbers to FF.
- Similarly, you can put 65,535 units on the clock by entering M 14E8 and altering the first two numbers to FF. This gives you ample time to look for all those bonuses! Note: you must repeat this poke at the start of every new level as the clock always resets.

WORLD ONE

SIC WORLD

LEVEL TWO MUSIC WORLD

Let the music take you up.

Watch out for the rising amp.

The easiest way to get through here is by bouncing across the four drums, shooting all the time.

Use the little platform to get over, and keep jumping from the big one to get all those records.

RESTART

Stand on the right side of the horn and wait for the music to elevate you, before jumping onto the spiky-bottomed platform. Repeat this procedure to get to the next platform.

Don't be tempted by all those collectables. Wait till the music stops falling before jumping across — otherwise you'll be pushed onto the spikes below. Alternatively, go round and get the items from the other side.

Play in order: red, yellow, blue and dark blue (as shown by the earlier sheet music). A silver note appears — grab it and you're carried up to the level exit.

Rising Amp: Poke out from platforms to catch you unawares.

Drum: Makes you bounce slightly on hitting the top. No real use.

SCENERY

Restart Point: Punch this half-buried remote control to turn the green button red. On dying, Zool will restart from here. There are several of these points per level.

Dissolving Platforms: Crumble when stepped on. Usually located above a hazard.

Spikes: Lethal to touch, often located beneath dissolving platforms.

Horns: Periodically emit loads of notes to push you up/down.

Turntable: Harmless to touch, but walking across it takes time.

Big Amplifier: The knobs turn as Zool walks across them, pushing him back/forward.

RESTART

PLAYING TIPS

Step on the middle of the sheet music and five notes float upwards and land on it. This indicates the keys to play on the first piano: dark red, yellow, red, orange and green. A gold note appears — catch it and you're transported to a bonus level.

Watch out for the amp that pokes down from the platform.

What a lot of amps — Motörhead must be getting ready for a gig!

Step on the middle of the sheet music and four notes float up onto it: dark red, orange, green, dark blue. Exit the bonus level via the gold note and play these on the piano. A silver note appears — kick it for a bonus life.

The rising coloured notes indicate which ones to play on the end-of-level piano.

Grab the shield and jump up to the top of the wall to find a bonus life.

Jump across the six pipes to get all the items. Alternatively, jump left from the third pipe to land on the wall.

RESTART

Brave the spikes to reach this big bonus note.

Don't miss this bonus ghetto-blaster.

Pipes: Can be jumped onto, but emit rising notes which knock Zool off if you're not careful.

Piano: It's great fun playing your favourite tunes on the old Joanna. Play the notes shown by sheet music and strange things will happen!

Exit: Takes you to the next level — but only if you've collected enough items!

Cymbals: Fly around the screen unpredictably.

Wall Climber: Goes up and down walls, making them difficult to jump up.

Note Monster: It looks horrible, and it can't be killed.

Walking Drum: Deflects your bullets upwards, but is easily killed by jumping on it.

ENEMIES

Sheet Music: Stepping onto the spine of some music books causes notes to float up onto the page — note them down and play 'em on the piano.

Violin: Fires deadly bows across the screen. It's best to shoot violins from a distance, instead of trying to jump onto or slide into them.

WIZEN

Lurking behind the ordinary graphics and predictable story line is an awesome icon-driven adventure. Getting into the action can be a tad tricky to begin with, though, so if you're stuck on the first three locations here's a handy guide to get you going... underground!

Collect this STRAW. You'll need it to start the fire.

You'll also need some WOOD for the fire, so use the TONGS to break the GUARDRAIL into manageable pieces.

Be sure to pick up these handy TONGS before stepping outside.

As URM follows you back into the kitchen he knocks a pot of STRAWBERRY JAM off the shelf (clumsy tw...bat!). Make sure you pick it up for later

Click on the CRYSTAL BALL to meet PETROY, who'll turn the crystal to brass allowing you to add the BRASS BALL to your inventory.

Click on the cupboard once to find the LARD...

This is your mystic friend, PETROY. Call on him to advise you at will, although for the most part he's a useless pillock who'd have trouble finding his bottom with both hands and a torch!

...and once more to reveal the KNIFE. Get both.

Serfs up! Here are your two little helpers, Uki and Orbi. They don't do much except ensure you can 'carry' as many items as you can find!

17

Now back in the Kitchen, place the STRAW and WOOD in the fireplace and call URM again with the FLUTE. Give him the STRAWBERRY JAM and he'll happily light your fire!

Next, you need to use the BRASS BALL on the RING, which will transform into a CAULDRON. Place this on the fire.

When you use the GOLD on the CAULDRON you'll find it melts, enabling you to pour the MOLTEN GOLD into the MOULD to make a GOLD KEY. Make your way back to the Lab again, where the GOLD KEY will come in very handy (bet you can't guess where!).

PLAYING TIPS

Select the FLUTE you just made, then go to the icons at the top and use it on yourself (select WEEN under characters). When URM the friendly vampire bat shows up, give him the STRAWBERRIES which you started the game with...

...and collect the GOLD he gives you in return, before nipping back into the Kitchen

Use the KNIFE or TONGS to get hold of this REED, then select KNIFE from your inventory and use it on the REED to make a FLUTE

12

Use the KEY to smash the SKULL. No, it won't open the PADLOCK on the TRAP door. You didn't expect it to be that easy, did you?

13

Inside the skull you'll find a magic RING. This is used in conjunction with the brass ball.

11

There are goodies (and baddies!) galore lurking in the Laboratory. Here we have a BOOK (useless), a bottle of SLEEPING POTION (which calls itself DIGITALIS once you've picked it up!), some SEEDS (under the table) and a SKULL. Get the SEEDS and POTION.

Pick up the PORTRAIT and hang it on the HOOK to reveal a secret HIDEAWAY.

This barmy bat's a beggar to beat, so, use the POTION/ DIGITALIS on the SEEDS which combine to make a DRUG. You can now use the DRUG on the HIDEAWAY sending bat features to the land of nod...

16

...allowing you to safely collect the WOODEN MOULD, which you should now take back into the Kitchen.

Just so's you know what you're letting yerself in for, this subterranean chamber awaits the unwary below the Lab. How do you cross the ravine?

18

Done it! As you unlock the TRAP door, the PADLOCK will magically transform into half a fish-shaped thing. You won't be needing this till much later.

61

15

Give the Jokebook to the princess. As she's just like all people in Dizzy games, she gives you something. This time it's a Flag.

14

Use the Spanner on the draw-bridge mechanism. And as if by magic, this amazingly lowers the drawbridge. Great, eh?

16

Use the Flag on the flagpole, and the king arrives home (after a series of events). Press fire to cycle through the text.

11

Use the Tweezers on the Lion. He's got a Thorn stuck in his foot and is ever so grateful when you remove the painful thing. Collect the offending article and take it to step 12...

PRINCE OF THE YOLKFOLK

Sick and tired of being the loser after shelling out hard (boiled) cash on the latest Dizzy escapade? Don't like being made an omelette all the time? Perhaps you'd better check this complete solution that's guaranteed cholesterol-free! It's eggsactly what you need for eggstensive eggsploation!

PLAYING TIPS

Drop the Fluffy next to the troll. The cage smashes and the irate little fluffy scares the troll away.

13

Give the Bugle to the guy wearing the funny costume (he's on the A Few Trees screen. He gives you his Jokebook in return.

Collect the Leaves, Match and Bucket. Drop the Leaves next to the door, and use the Match to set them ablaze. Use the Bucket (presumably filled with water) to put out the blazing exit.

Use the Pickaxe on the rock, giving access to the underground caves.

If you have the Gold Nugget (found in the caves) the Ferryman will take it as a toll charge. You're in trouble if you haven't...

Drop the Cage on the floor next to the Fluffy. Secondly, drop the Holy Cheese inside the cage. The fluffy soon nips inside (pesky little bleeder that he is).

Give the Harp to St Peter, and you become the proud owner of some Holy Cheese.

Give the Outboard Motor to the Ferryman, and in return he rewards you with his nasty-looking Scythe.

Use the Acme Bridge Kit to make an extra platform, allowing you to get past the gap.

10

Use the Scythe to cut down the brambles, allowing access to the castle.

Tricky jumping ahoj! Getting over the water (to collect the Harp) is simple when you know how. Leap onto the cloud and then jump exactly from the end nearest the castle. Be careful to time it correctly, or it's bathtime for Dizzy...

Action Replay owners can have as many Dizzys as they want by pressing Freeze, typing M 16D, and changing the first two-digit value to the desired number of lives (maximum FF).

Finally! Use the key to open the door and press fire while standing next to Daisy to wake her up. Providing you've collected all 20 cherries, you'll be fine and dandy, having completed Dizzy, Prince Of The Yolkfolk.

PRINCELY POKE!

LOST YOUR CHERRY?

So, you want the cherries, do you? Well here's where you'll find the little bleeders...

- Trapped!
- A Few Trees!
- Hillside
- A Secret Cave!
- Top of the Hill
- The Ferryman (behind stereo)
- The Uppermost Branches
- Awfully High Clouds
- Enchanted Treetops (in treehouse)

- Stairs and Landing
- Castle Ramparts
- Castle Drawbridge
- Tower Drawbridge (behind brambles)
- Edge of the Tower
- The Deserted Tower
- More Clouds
- Double Trouble (behind the spanner)

12

Drop the Thorn on the lower level. Then, go to the top level and walk to the far edge of the screen. The evil Dizzy is killed when he walks over the Thorn. You're now safe to collect the Spanner...

Lemmings LIFELINE™

■ No! Don't jump! If that damned Lemmings level has got you tearing your hair out help is at hand. Our Lemmings Lifeline page aims to aid the afflicted and supply solutions to some of the more difficult screens. Each issue we'll feature the level we've received most missives concerning — this month it's Level 23 from the original game, From The Boundary Line. So... Joshua Green from South London, Jon Scott of Wiltshire, Mark Raytard of Cardiff and anyone else who's stuck on it... heave a huge a sigh of relief and untie that noose! Please write to Lemmings Lifeline, Amiga Force Magazine, Europress Impact Ltd, Ludlow, Shropshire SY8 1JW. Please enclose your name and address, the name and code of the level you're stuck on (either from the original game, or the later levels disk), and we'll do what we can.

With only a handful of diggers, climbers, floaters and a singular bridge-builder to play with, you've certainly got your work cut out for you. One of the trickiest 'Tricky' levels in the game it's no wonder we received a trio of begging letters!

1 It's not essential to send a climber up first, but we find it helps. What you MUST do, though, is turn a walker into a horizontal digger straight away. You'll lose a lot of Lemmings early on, but don't worry. Oh, and if you do use a climber at this stage, remember to make him a floater before he drops off the edge...

...then select a walker from the bunch at the bottom to turn into a climber JUST before you make your vertical digger a horizontal one (like this).

You'll be doing lots of this if you don't use these easy-to-follow steps!

Turn your climber into a vertical digger here...

4

Predictably, timing is crucial at this juncture. As the second climber reaches the first — who's now digging away horizontally — he'll turn around and walk back the way he came. Quickly select another walker (or two!) and make him into a climber. Now when the Lemming who's walking 'backwards' reaches the lip of the pit you have to deftly select the diagonal digger icon. He'll dig away enabling the rest of the crew to climb up...

...to where you've made your third (or fourth!) climber into a bridge builder. If all's gone well — and if you've followed these steps correctly it damn well should have! — this will be the end result. Congratulations, the (relatively) easy level number 24 awaits!

PLAYING TIPS

REAL ACTION!

At AMIGA FORCE we don't believe in doing things by halves. Never mind tight magazine deadlines — we stayed up all night to bring you this massive list of Action Replay pokes. If you've ever tried finding a poke yourself, you'll know it can be a long-winded business — we do! So this little lot'll save you loads of valuable gamesplaying time!

WIN A REPLAY!

Yes, just like Leeds United, you can win a Replay. But there's no need to point out the other side's use of ineligible players! And the prize is much better than a trip to Spain. The Action Replay Mk III is an essential piece of kit for the serious gamesplayer. As well as helping you find game-busting pokes, it can be used to grab game screens and save them out as standard IFF files (that's how we do most of our screenshots!) — and it can do the same with sound samples, too.

To stand a chance of winning one of these fiendish devices — kindly donated by the makers, Datel Electronics — just tell us the answer to this simple question:

What colour is the Freeze button on the Action Replay Mk III?

Jot down the answer, along with your name and address, and send it to REPLAY COMP, AMIGA FORCE, Europress Impact, Ludlow, Shropshire SY8 1JW. Entries must reach us by 18 February 1993.

■ First, press the Freeze button on your Action Replay! If the poke has 'TFD' before it, type this followed by the address (eg TFD 34AFC) and press Return. The cart will take a few seconds to find and delete the decrement instruction, so you'll get infinite whatever. Once it's done this, press Esc and then X to return to your game.

If the poke doesn't have 'TFD' before it, instead type M and then the address (eg M 7C55). A row of two-digit hexadecimal numbers is displayed: change the first to the desired value (ie number of lives/credits etc required — maximum FF), press Return, then Esc, and finally X to return to the game.

ANOTHER WORLD (US Gold)

A very atmospheric arcade adventure with some impressive animation. It can get frustrating, though, so these level codes come in handy:

1 — EDJI	5 — CCAL	9 — ICAH
2 — HICI	6 — EDIL	10 — FIEI
3 — FLLD	7 — FADK	11 — LALD
4 — LIBC	8 — KCIJ	12 — LFEK

AGONY (Paynook)

Snazzy presentation can't disguise a very typical horizontally scrolling shoot-'em-up. Still worth a blast, though. Type FANTASY and you can now skip levels by pressing Return. Pressing F1-F5 gives you the various add-on weapons.

THE ADDAMS FAMILY (Ocean)

This superslick arcade adventure retains all the spirit (ho ho!) of the ghoulish family. These codes allow you to start in various places:
 &1Y1M — three hearts (after big tree), ?191D — hearts (after fridge in kitchen), B919R — five hearts (after conservatory), V1514 — Pugsley (games room), V919B — Fester (picture gallery), BG9K& — Wednesday (crypt), BLSK# — Granny (kitchen)

BACK TO THE FUTURE 3 (Imageworks)

Better than its predecessor, this turns three key scenes from the movie into varied, playable levels. To beat each section, type in the following codes while the storyboard is on:
 Level 1 — ROTTEN CHEAT
 Level 2 — LOUSY CHEAT
 Level 3 — LOW DOWN CHEAT

BACK TO THE FUTURE 2 (Imageworks)

'I want a De Lorean... you're in big trouble McFly... it's your kids Marty, your kids...' The film series is great, but many movie licences look far too thin and jaded, and this is a prime example. Pause the game and type THE ONLY NEAT THING TO DO for infy lives. Pressing Shift and Z allows you to skip levels.

APIDYA (Playbyte)

This superb horizontal blaster's got bugs galore — not programming ones, but the creepy-crawly kind! The ultimate insecticide comes in the form of this lengthy cheat. For infinite lives, type in SHOWCREDITS, MISSHONEYBEE, HASTALAVISTA, DEPUTYOFLOVE, and SNEAKPREVIEW. Hit the Return key after each entry.

BLUES BROTHERS (Titus)

Come on, sing along... 'Everybody needs somebody to love!' Erm... maybe. But you, me, everyone!, needs a cheat for this perfectly pitched platformer. On the selection screen, type HOULQ, then press 1, 2, 3, 4, 5 or 6 for the level you want to play.

BARBARIAN 2 (Paynook)

An epic arcade adventure with some superslick graphics, but repetitive action that soon becomes tedious. At least this cheat'll get you through it quicker! To replenish lost energy, hold down Help, M and E together.

BARBARIAN (Klax)

This is how hack-'em-ups should be: bloody and brutal — don't you just love those decapitations? It's old, but by no means rusty, and well worth a slice of your cash on budget. For infinite lives, type 04 08 59 on the title screen.

COOL CROC TWINS (Empire)

A great little game, especially with two players racing to switch those lights on. If you keep getting crocked, don't shed crocodile tears, just try these level codes: TRIAX, DREAM, MUNGO, JANKO, HENRI, DOORS, FLOYD, BRUNO, MONEY, HUMAN, GIRLS

CHASE HQ 2 (Ocean)

Far better than its predecessor, this retains all the high-speed-pursuit thrills of the coin-op. When the game starts, type in IN A GARDEN IN. Press T during the game to reset the time and press N to teleport to the next level.

CHASE HQ (Hit Squad)

Not exactly the greatest coin-op conversion ever, but this cheat stops those cops from running out of time.

At any point, hold down the left mouse button and the joystick fire button, while typing GROWLER. Afterwards press T during the game to reset the clock to 60 seconds.

DYNA BLASTER (Ubi Soft)

This compulsive five-player battle has an amazing history: in previous incarnations it was called Eric And The Floaters (ancient Spectrum game) and Bombberman (PC Engine).

Here's some codes:

2-5 — ROVEEWTPC	6-1 — ROFVWBNL
3-1 — MXVCLASH	6-7 — MXREPVMN
3-6 — MXCCLIZY	7-3 — MAREWGKP
4-2 — ROCEGMPU	7-7 — MXREVQNM
4-7 — ROOCLWEL	8-2 — MXAEPMYH
5-1 — ROLCLSEW	8-6 — MAHEGSLN

DOJO DAN (Europress)

A colourful platformer with loads of varied levels, its only flaw is the high level of difficulty. For frustrated Dan fans, here's the all-important cheat. Type in WOOLANKIDKICKSBUTT for infinite lives. You can now press S for a permanent shield, F8 to finish the level, and F9 to complete the section.

DEFLEKTOR (Pocket Power)

The Prism Pocket Power range has something of a chequered reputation — there's some neat games on there, but there's an awful lot of dross too. Nothing wrong with Deflektor though — it's a steal at £2.99!

The keys + and - can be used to skip forwards and backwards through levels.

HAGAR THE HORRIBLE (Kingsoft)

Not that horrible, this is a fairly amusing arcade adventure for fans of the comic strip. If you're scratching your horns in frustration, here are the level codes:

1 — FEAFGN	4 — UWFXPY
2 — JVSAMK	5 — FSXRIC
3 — ASGAPQ	6 — DZAGTG
7 — WFYILD

GHOULS 'N' GHOSTS (Klaxx)

A classic coin-op conversion with a scintillating Tim Follin soundtrack. It's dead hard, though — if you're always getting stripped down to your undies, why not try this cheat? Type KARENBROADHURST on the title screen to remove the collision detection, so you can't get hit.

GHOSTS 'N' GOBLINS (Elite)

If this golden-oldie coin-op conversion's still haunting you, type ! as your name on the high-score table. This removes the collision detection, so nothing can hurt you.

Another method of achieving exactly the same thing is by typing DELBOY on the credits screen.

JAGUAR XJ220 (Corel)

Very much in the Lotus vein, but not quite as thrilling, and lacking overall challenge due to the large prize money. As soon as the starter says 'GO', press P. Now press it again to win instantly — even the real car's not that fast!

IK+ (Hit Squad)

The classic karate sim is still one of the best beat-'em-ups around, with superb three-cornered fights. To give yourself a considerable advantage, press the Space Bar when you're knocked over, then press fire while the game is paused. You can no longer be touched.

HARD DRIVIN' (Raspray)

This crusty coin-op conversion is both sluggish and full of bugs. It's still mildly playable, though. Select manual gears, then accelerate to full speed. At this point, change into neutral: you should now be invincible to collisions.

MAGICLAND DIZZY (CodeMasters)

This classic Dizzy arcade adventure is featured on the spiffing Super All-Stars compilation (reviewed last ish). If you're eggs-periencing eggs-haustion, this cheat's eggs-actly what you need to crack it! Pause the game and type in DIAMONDS AND PEARLS for infinite Dizzys.

KID GLOVES (GM)

Not exactly innovative, but the cute platform action plays well enough. The gloves come off with these cheats. At the start, press F1 to pause, type in RHIANNON and press F9 for infinite lives. At any time in the game, repeat the process, but press F8 (instead of F9) for nine keys, nine spells, three extra lives, nine smart bombs and $10,000.

JOHN MADDEN FOOTBALL (Electronic Arts)

The best computer implementation of gridiron ever. Fans will appreciate the combination of superb tactical depth and slick arcade action. If you keep getting hammered, try these pass-codes: 0540300 — quarter-final, 0150361 — semi-final, 0550361 — the Superbowl.

NAVY S.E.A.L.S (Ocean)

You can always depend on Ocean to snap up a film tie-in. This one backfired on them — the movie bombed completely, leaving them sod-all publicity for their licence, but the game was okay, so who cares? On the high-score table enter your name as PSBOYS. Now you can press H to pause and ESCAPE to skip levels.

MIDNIGHT RESISTANCE (Ocean)

Spot-on conversion of the hit coin-op, featuring great two-player blasting action and some impressive enemy supervehicles. For infinite lives and energy, type IT'S EASY WHEN YOU KNOW HOW (including spaces) on the title screen.

MEGA-LO-MANIA (ImageWorks)

One of the best 'God' games around, this features some gorgeously glossy graphics and stunning speech samples. Progress easily through the epochs with these level codes:

2 — BNYABDUNBHV 6 — WWKOXGPXBDZ
3 — COVCPMJVEBL 7 — KUUCTOPLGHV
4 — WKCCHIEUKNL 8 — PEHAJBPKZQAQ

PARASOL STARS (Ocean)

Compulsive and cute, this lives up to its stunning predecessor, Rainbow Islands, adding a neat two-player mode.

Plug your mouse into the second player's joystick port and select one-player mode. Now press the right mouse button to clear the current level.

OPERATION THUNDERBOLT (Hit Squad)

A good conversion of the coin-op, with some nice 3-D graphics and nonstop two-player blasting action. When you get to the high-score table, enter your name as WIGAN NINJA to receive infinite lives.

NEW ZEALAND STORY (Hit Squad)

Surely one of the best coin-op conversions ever, this cutesy platformer retains all the fun and magic of the arcade machine. For infinite lives, on the title screen type in FLUFFY KIWIS FOR PRESIDENT (a lot cleaner than the notorious C64 cheat model). You can now press Help to skip levels.

RODLAND (Storm)

This sprightly arcade conversion may look slickly sweet, but it's not for fairies! However, if you can't fill your pixie boots, this tip's better than waving your magic wand in desperation!

Pause the game and press Help exactly five times for infinite lives. Press the Space Bar to skip levels.

ROBOCOP 2 (Ocean)

Familiar game ideas, but there's no lack of challenge in this effective movie licence. If Robo keeps copping it, you need this cheat mode.

First, type SERIALINTERFACE on the title screen. During the game, press F9 to top up your energy, and F10 to skip levels.

PUSHOVER (Ocean)

Domino toppling's never been so much fun in this send-up of other puzzle games. The game's no pushover, though, so here are some level codes:

10 — 07680	40 — 30734	70 — 19071
20 — 15362	50 — 22046	80 — 28927
30 — 08718	60 — 17470	90 — 28671
	100 — 44543

ST DRAGON (Storm)

A lengthy cheat for this horizontal blaster. For infinite lives, press Caps Lock and type WHATS WRONG NEVER SEEN A GUY WHO SLEPT WITH A FISH BEFORE and then press Return and Caps Lock.

Alternatively, type in DECAFFEINATED for invincibility.

SIM CITY (Infogrames)

One of the most compulsive games ever created — developing a whole city from nothing gives a great sense of achievement.

Hold down Shift and type in FUND — each time you do this you're given $10,000. Be careful, though: do it too often and you'll suffer from major earthquakes!

SHADOW DANCER (US Gold)

A good conversion of the Shinobi-sequel coin-op, the main novelty is your dog who follows you around and can be sent in to savage baddies.

Pause the game and type GIVE ME INFINITES for, erm, infinite lives!

5 — 1933	10 — 8612	15 — 2045

TERMINATOR 2 (Orson)

This spectacular conversion implements key scenes from the blockbuster movie to great effect. Varied levels range from thrilling bike and car chases to perplexing puzzle games. For those lacking the muscle to complete it, this cheat should terminate their frustration. Pause the game and press F1 then F2 to skip levels.

SUPERCARS (CBM)

A corking budget release. Anyone who didn't buy Supercars as a full-priced outing has absolutely no excuse now it's only eight quid! King of the Supersprint derivatives, it'll have you playing for months! Enter ODIE to skip the first level, BIGC to jump to the third, and RICH for pots of cash.

TREASURE ISLAND DIZZY (Codemasters)

Eggceptional! Eggcellent! Eggstremely good! It's no yolk: when it comes to arcade adventures, Dizzy really is the tops. If you're having trouble with his second outing and decided enough is un oeuf, check out this 100% salmonella-free cheat. Type ICANFLY and you can! Also try EGGSONLEGS for immortality.

TOTAL RECALL (Orson)

Though a mildly playable platformer, this doesn't use the blockbuster film licence very well. The graphics aren't that special either. For infinite lives, type in LISTEN TO THE WHALES on the scoreboard.

TOKI (Orson)

If this coin-op conversion's still making a monkey out of you, and generally driving you bananas, this cheat'll have you swinging from the trees! Just start the game, then type KILLER. Now you can press F1-F7 to skip to any level (F1 = Level 1 etc).

WINGS OF FURY (Demark)

If those Japs are still knocking you out of the sky, these cheats are more ideologically sound than dropping an atom bomb. During the game, type: M for endless weapons, C to change weapons during flight, D for invisibility, P for Extra Lives, and F to top up oil and fuel during flight.

UGH! (Playbyte)

A prehistoric taxi service doesn't sound much fun, but controlling your caveman cabbie is a great laugh. Stone me, here are some level codes!

GOING PUBLIC

PUBLIC DOMAIN

Paying £20-£30 for a game is not something everyone can do, so knowledge of the various PD libraries (and their current catalogue) is essential. JAMES PRICE takes a look through some of the more current offerings...

WHAT IS PD?

Public Domain (or PD) programs are those where the author has relaxed his or her copyright, allowing them to be distributed freely. PD libraries charge only disk and duplication costs, and you're perfectly entitled to copy a friend's disk. PD's bosom-buddy Shareware can also be freely copied, but if you like the program and continue to use it you should send the programmer the specified registration fee (usually found on the title page).

DATACLAN GAMES DISK 3 (2 DISKS)

The third Dataclan games compilation lives up to the high standard set by its predecessors (reviewed last ish). For the small hassle of sending two disks and an SAE (no copying fee!), you're receiving some of the better-quality PD and Shareware currently available. Compatible with the Amiga 500 (with 1 meg upgrade), 500+ and 600, it comes with comprehensive instructions for all the games.

Tip number 1 — Don't sneeze on the monitor while playing Microbes...

The package gets off to a fairly unorthodox start with Microbes, an original but not particularly astounding piece of Shareware. Once you've finished laughing at the blatantly anti-American plot you can get into the game, where you control a miniaturised craft moving around the rim of the circular screen. Inside the circle, various microbes are growing, multiplying and being a general pain in the bum. The idea is to destroy these as quickly as possible, while dodging projectiles launched by their little spaceship mates. It's all good fun at first, but soon becomes a bit tiresome — not really worth the £3 registration fee.

I recognise that cursor... That's the Lemmings pointer! I saw it first! Do I win a big, fluffy prize though?

In contrast, Tanx is something of a classic. The simple display shows a tank on either side of a randomly generated mountain range. The two players take turns in firing shots at each other's tank. Aiming is achieved by altering the turret elevation and the power of the shot. It usually takes a lot of near misses to gauge the correct trajectory and win the game.

This may sound crude but it's great fun — perfect PD really. The addition of options affecting the wind and severity of the mountain ranges gives it a little more lastability than other similar games.

Dragon Tiles is a Shareware puzzle game that doesn't really hit the mark. Each screen is made up of 120 symbol tiles, all of which can stack up to four blocks high. Clicking on two tiles with either the left or right adjacent square empty results in them disappearing, revealing tiles underneath that also need dealing with...

Again, this is another piece of Shareware that would have been better as a PD release. The £5 registration fee is ludicrously high, especially when you compare it with games like Smash TV — The Rip Off.

If you look carefully enough, you'll see one of the tile designs is a picture of Miner Willy (of Manic Miner). Honestly.

When I saw the name Mouth-Man on the game selection screen, my heart almost stopped. Surely, surely no-one would have programmed another Pac-Man clone? Agghhhh!

To put it in a nutshell, Pac games are pretty awful these days, as once you've seen one, you've seen them all. However, if you haven't got a version yet, Mouth-Man's about as good as they get.

Pill popping blobs on your Amiga? What is the world coming to? It'll be A-Steroids next, mark my words!

PUBLIC DOMAIN

■ Not much to look at, perhaps, but two-player Tank Attack is a blast and a half. Simple but effective, some day all PD etc.

Tank Attack is a 'tribute' to Combat (an old Atari game) but rather than just making an identical version, the programmers have souped up the gameplay. New features include a four-player option, multiple power-ups and a myriad of different screens to fight friends on. Potentially the best game on the pack, Tank Attack falls down because of the lack of a one-player option.

Croak is described on its title screen as an 'Amphibian Migration Game'. I've never heard Frogger referred to as this before! As with Mouth-Man, this is a very good (if not better) version of the old coin-op, but at the end of the day this is ancient software with fairly limited appeal.

■ Question: What's green and goes ribbit ribbit, hop hop, splat! Yep, you guessed, a frog on a motorway!

Following (and nigh on duplicating) Tank Attack comes Quick Money, a scrolling split-screen version. While it's pretty much the same game in essence, it somehow manages to be a lot less satisfying. Maybe that's because the programmer has tried to complicate a simple concept, but as a stand-alone PD game, it's really not that bad. A special mention must go to the excellent parallax scrolling — impressive stuff for free software.

■ As strange as it may seem, this tank is a wild eyed angel of the night, pumping us with diabetes as we sleep. Arggggh!

Bounce And Blast is by far the best game on the pack. With graphics and gameplay better than some commercial budget releases, it scores highly in the ever-critical eyes of the AMIGA FORCE team. A platform romp with multidirectional scrolling, progressive power-ups and a mean difficulty curve, it'd be worth ordering on its own. With that in mind, it's our duty to inform you that it is Shareware, and that the programmers have some great offers for those scrupulous enough to send their £5 registration fee. Believe us, it's worth every penny.

Duck is the weak link in the compilation. It's a fairly poor rendition ■ Bounce and Blast — undoubtedly the best game included in Pack Three.

■ Boggle at the amazing graphics, swoon as you become engrossed in the gameplay. Then wake up!

of the old Carnival arcade machine, and will send you into the world of nod about two minutes into your first game. As it's free, you can't really complain, but this isn't something you'll come back to.

■ Oh No! It's an awful Asteroids clone featuring our little blue & green chums!

Lemmingoids is another slightly questionable addition. It's an Asteroids clone, but rather than huge rocks your target is a plethora of blue and green Lemmings. As a ■ Pssst! Don't tell Nintendo, but this PD offering looks very much like one of their games!

CRAZY SUE 17 Bit

Crazy Sue is the second platform game this month, and although not quite up to the standards of Dataclan's Bounce And Blast, it's an enjoyable jumparound. Crazy Sue has to get into the Dark Wizard's castle to stop a terrible catastrophe from coming to pass, using platforms to dodge her invincible assailants to achieve this.

Possibly our favourite part of the game is the soundtrack. It really makes good listening, and calms nerves jangling from the harsh difficulty level. As a PD game it's excellent, as you'd usually only expect to see this sort of quality on Shareware.

quick blast before moving onto the next game it's great, but falls down in very much the same way as Duck. The only memorable aspect is the sampled 'Oh No!'s nicked from the original Lemmings.

Speaking of theft, Interferon is a pretty blatant 'tribute' (there's that word again!) to Dr Mario. It's a step on from Tetris that manages to be exceptionally addictive, even if you thought you'd had enough of this genre. There's the usual fiddling around with brightly coloured blocks, and even some nice title-screen options, allowing you to tailor the game to suit your mood. It's a great PD game that compares favourably with its official subject matter. A little corker, really.

Following the theme set by the previous two, Biplanes says on the title page that it was 'inspired by an Intellivision game'. Well, at least some programmers are honest about their sources of inspiration!

■ Like Orville, James can't fly. Biplanes did little to remedy his problem.

The idea is to steer your plane clockwise/anticlockwise around a wraparound screen, engaging in combat with either the computer or a friend. It's a very simple idea, but sadly let down by a poor control system. Its fine for a two-player bash, but that's all.

■ Here's my story it's sad but true, 'bout a girl that I once new. She took my lolly and ran around, on all the platforms over town. Shoop, shoop, etc.

DOODY 17 Bit

Once upon a time there was a game called The Mario Bros, by a company called Nintendo. It was a static-screen platform affair requiring the joystick wielder to capture (or kill) the assorted critters populating the levels. This could be done by jumping underneath the platforms they stood on, knocking them over onto their backs. Once this had been done, the hero could run over their upturned bodies to dispense of them once and for all.

Doody is virtually the same game. We could see no real differences (bar the obvious graphical improvement), so Mario fans will no doubt lap it up.

So, there you have it. The third Dataclan package is fantastic value for money (ie it doesn't really cost any), with some excellent games accompanied by some run-of-the-mill PD stuff. But then you're not spending £30, so why complain?

PUBLIC DOMAIN

■ Roll out the barrel, you'll have a barrel of... laughs! It may be Donkey's years old, but this PD platformer's still a giggle.

DONKEY KONG 17 Bit

Who can remember Donkey Kong? Did you know that it was originally meant to be Monkey Kong, but there was a mistake in the translation from the Japanese title?

Everyone must have played it in their time, as we've seen versions on almost all home computers available. As a game it's just a joke these days, as we've advanced to the point where software given away for free is better than the old arcade machines.

However, if you remember the original and would like a nostalgic trip back to early '80s computerland, Donkey Kong won't disappoint. It's a fair rendition, although badly let down by the original game design.

JOIN THE A-TEAM EVERY MONTH!

SUBSCRIPTION

What do you want to hear first: the good news or the great news? Well, the good news is that from Issue 3 (on sale 18 February), AMIGA FORCE will be published every month! No more long waits between issues! No more hair-tearing frustration, yearning for the latest, hottest tips!

The even better news is you can now get AMIGA FORCE on a low-cost, recession-beating subscription. Not only do you receive 12 issues of the magazine for serious Amiga gamers, you also get THREE great Gremlin games (total original value: £74.97) for just FOUR pounds extra!

LOTUS ESPRIT TURBO CHALLENGE

■ Even more playable than its two classy sequels, this is the two-player driving game. The rollercoaster 3-D action is superfast; the competition furious, as you bump and barge past the computer cars and into each other on obstacle-strewn tracks.

THREEBIES!

SWITCHBLADE

■ A cracking arcade adventure with the hero punching and kicking baddies galore as he searches for the fragments of a mythical sword. The innovation of showing unexplored areas as unlit removes the risk of backtracking in the extensive underground levels.

MANIX

■ A souped-up variation of the classic Q-Bert coin-op, this has you jumping around the isometric 3-D blocks to change their colour, requiring a combination of quick thinking and arcade reflexes.

BUT I'VE ALREADY GOT ONE!

■ However, we realise that some of you dedicated gamers may already have one (or more) of the three free games. In this case, you can subscribe — without getting the games — for a special DISCOUNT price!

Make your choice (games or not), tick the relevant box in the coupon, fill in your details and send it to Europress Direct (not the AMIGA FORCE editorial office). And may the FORCE be with you...

SUBSCRIBE TO AMIGA FORCE FOR ONLY £22.99 AND GET THREE GREAT GREMLIN GAMES! OR SUBSCRIBE TO AMIGA FORCE AT THE SPECIAL DISCOUNT PRICE OF £18.99!

I WANT TO SIGN UP!

■ I want to join the rapidly growing AMIGA FORCE army. I understand I must be of sound mind and prefer purely games reviews and tips — and no techno-babble. I don't have an attitude problem and I can't wait to get my hands on the explosive equipment every gamer needs: that's a year's supply of AMIGA FORCE, please!

■ Tick where appropriate.

■ Please send me the next 12 issues of AMIGA FORCE with great Gremlin games bundle:

6501 ☐ I live in the United Kingdom (£22.99)

6503 ☐ I live in Europe or Eire (£30.99)

6505 ☐ I live outside Europe (£40.99)

6701 ☐ Don't forget to send me my three free games!

■ Please send me the next 12 issues of AMIGA FORCE, at the special discount price, but without free games:

6511 ☐ I live in the United Kingdom (£18.99)

6513 ☐ I live in Europe or Eire (£26.99)

6515 ☐ I live outside Europe (£36.99)

COMING NEXT MONTH (AND EVERY MONTH!)

Rome may not have been built in a day, but the A-FORCE crew reckon things would've been different if they'd been given the contract. After all, if Phil King can piece together splendidous Zool maps, then (in comparison) constructing towers and inventing proper toilet facilities would be a doddle.

But, as much as we'd like to try, there's always Issue 3 to keep us occupied. With all the new software being released at the moment we'll find plenty of maps, tips and wonderfully unbiased reviews to compile. Going Public will be as user-friendly as ever, with a bumper crop of everything cool in the PD/Shareware world and, with any luck, Sue-E-Side won't have thrown herself off the roof before the next Lemmings Lifeline is complete.

So, if it's virus-free, game-cracking fun you want, you know where to come...

REVIEWED IN
AMIGA FORCE!

ALIEN 3

Acclaim are busting a gut to get Alien 3 in for review. We've seen the Mega Drive version and have high hopes for the Amiga incarnation — be nice to have a little gore instead of contrived cuteness for a change...

GOBLIINS 2

They're cheeky, they're funny, they're irresistible! The sequel looks to retain all the humour of its predecessor, with two new goblins to control in a puzzle-filled graphic adventure.

DALEK ATTACK

Dr Who battles against his arch enemies in four Earth cities. In Admiral's arcade adventure you even get to choose from three Doctors.

SHADOWWORLD

On the three planets of the Magna 6 system you have set up a modest research facility. Nothing too extreme. Just a few personnel, a Galaxy-class space station and the most powerful weapons development facility the Universe has ever known.

But now you have a problem. The regular daily contact schedule on the sub-space station network with Magna 6 has gone a bit quiet. Well, silent actually. In fact, you have had no word from the facility in 2 months.

You need to send trusted yet expendable men in to get answers and carry out a discreet, efficient operation.

Pick your four man team and "Deep Sleep", the cryogenic computer will keep them in suspended animation until they arrive at Magna 6, an interstellar journey of almost 17 months. And then wait for their report. But what possible explanation could there be for trouble on Magna 6 - there is no power in the universe capable of disturbing the facility. The known universe, that is.
